CONVICTED FOR MURDERING WIFE

SAID TO HAVE THROWN HER OVER CLIFF

WANTED TO INHERIT A FORTUNE ALLEGED

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 15---Frederick T. Price, a business man of this city, was convicted for the murder of his wife, Mrs. Fridley Price, member of a wealthy Minnesota family, by a jury in district court here today.

The trial of Frederick T. Price on a charge of murdering his wife, Mary Fridley Price, began in district court here on January 4. The prosecution charged that on the night of November 28, 1914, Price, accompanied by his wife and Charles D. Etchison, a traveling salesman, of Washington, D. C., drove to a point along the East River road where he brought his automobile to a halt, and, seizing his wife, hurled her from a high cliff.

It was further charged that Price, who was a local business man, went to the foot of the cliff and finding his wife still alive, (Continued On Page Six)

RUSSIAN OFFENSIVE MEETS STRONG RESISTANCE FROM CENTRAL POWER FORCES

Berlin, Jan. 15---(Wireless to Sayville)---The Russian offensive has been renewed on the Bessarabian front and five important attacks have been repulsed by the Austro-Hungarian troops, according to the Austrian official report, dated January 14, and received here today.

The Austrian official statement follows:
"On the Bessarabian front the Russians have again attempted to break through near Toporoutz and east of Raminetz. Five great attacks failed. The well directed Austro-Hungarian artillery fire contributed eminently to the repulse of the Russians. Since the beginning of the battle in East Galicia and Bessarabia the Austro-Hungarian forces of Generals Pflanzer, Ballin and Bothmer have taken 5,100 Russians, including thirty officers. Austro-Hungarian patrols routed Russian field guards near Karpilovka.
"In Montenegro the troops of that country, having abandoned the capital, are in retreat on the whole south and west front. The Austro-Hungarian troops, who are following up the enemy, have passed the line of Budina-Cetinje-Grah-Grahovo, and have entered Montenegrin territory east of Bilua and near Avtovac.

HYDROGEN GAS BELIEVED CAUSE OF DISASTER; RESCUE PARTIES FOILED BY FUMES

BULLETIN
Washington, Jan. 15---Official reports to the navy department say three men were killed and eleven were injured in the explosion on the Submarine E-2 today at the New York navy yard.

New York, Jan. 15---An explosion aboard the Submarine E-2 in dry dock at the New York navy yard, caused the death today of at least three members of the crew and injured a number of others, variously reported as from six to twenty.

One was killed outright and two died later in the naval hospital at the yard. Six seriously injured were taken to the hospital shortly after the explosion occurred about 1:45 o'clock.

At three o'clock others rescued from the interior of the submarine were being brought in.

The explosion was said to be due to hydrogen gas igniting while the new batteries, invented by Thomas A. Edison were being re-charged.

Newspaper men were barred from the navy yard and authentic details could not be obtained during the first two hours following the explosion. Some reports had it that ten men were in the submarine at the time and that eight or none were instantly killed. The deck of the submarine was entirely blown out it was reported outside of the yard.

Several officers who attempted to enter the submarine at the head of a rescue party were driven back by the fumes, and it was reported at three p. m. that a number of bodies were still in the interior.

Four of the injured who were removed to the naval hospital just outside the yard were thought by surgeons to have little chance for recovery. They were L. C. Miles, chief electrician, of Brooklyn; John Holsey, seaman, Baltimore, Md.; Guy H. Clark, Jr., Frankfort, New York, and Ramon Otto, Middleburg, Md. Rear Admiral Nathaniel R. Usher, commandant of the navy yards, was listening to Secretary Daniels' speech on preparedness at the Democratic Club here when he was informed of the explosion. The commandant went at once to the navy yard and told newspapermen. (Continued On Page Six)

We've had snow, rain, sunshine--winter, spring, summer and fall all in th' short space o' six days and that's goin' some or I don't know weather when I see it. ## Actual Blockade Of Central Powers By England Is Expected

London, Jan. 15---That Great Britain will soon announce the establishment of an actual blockade of Germany and her allies, thereby superseding the condition which had been established by the orders in council, was the statement made today by Americans who have been in close contact with the machinery of the British orders in council in consequence of their acting here as representatives of American ship-owners whose business had been affected by the execution of the orders.
A person who can speak authoritatively and who has acted as a representative of Americans interests in connection with British prize court proceedings, reviewed today for the Associated Press, the evolution of the orders in council. He said: "The British government shows an unmistakable tendency now to shift around to the persistently expressed American contention that the International law which prevailed before the present war must ultimately govern Great Britain's assertion of her sea power. It is well known that when the war began the admiralty urged upon the foreign office the necessity for the declaration of an actual blockade, but the latter believed that the susceptibilities of neutrals could be better met by orders in council and, after the adoption of these, the government began its interminable agreements with neutrals.

Had To Find Cow First Before Separating It From Its Lactical Product.

FIRST MONEY JOHN W. HALL EARNED WAS MILKING COW FOR 50 CENTS A DAY

It was a princely salary of 50 cents a day that John W. Hall, clerk of courts, earned as his first money, when a lad of ten years of age. So far as the amount is concerned, he has it all over the other local men who have told the story of their first earnings to The Times.

To earn this munificent amount, he had to get up early in the morning, milk a cow belonging to the late Col. Joseph B. Cockerell, of West Union, where Mr. Hall's parents resided at the time, drive it to pasture, go after it again in the evening, and milk it again in the evening.

In fact, that cow was John's particular charge. He was supposed to feed it, and see that it was properly cared for during the night. Col. Cockerell turned that cow over to the tender mercies of the youthful John, and if we can believe the present clerk of courts, that trust was not neglected.

The best part of the job, John says, was that each evening, Col. Cockerell would hand him a bright, shining, half dollar in payment for his day's work. According to Mr. Hall, Col. Cockerell, who served with honor and distinction in the 70th Regiment during the Civil War, was a man of wealth, and his liberality was one of his marked characteristics. He was loved and revered in that community, and his memory is still cherished by the men and women of today who knew him and honored him.

Col. Cockerell's son, John A. Cockerell, achieved fame as a newspaper man. He was the first editor of the New York World, after that paper was purchased by the late Joseph Pulitzer. At that time, he was rated as the highest paid editor in the United States.

Mr. Hall hasn't anything on his deputy, John Harcha, of Buena Vista, who said that his first job, which was in the Buena Vista stone quarries, netted him a wage of 50 cents a day.

Mr. Shute Explains About Bad Taste Of Water; Says It's Harmless And Unavoidable

Believing that no person in the city is better qualified to speak on the particular subject than the man directly in charge of the plant The Times on Saturday requested George Shute, chief sanitary and hydraulic engineer, to explain the bad taste of the city water, and this he has done in the following contribution:

So much has been said about the taste in the city water that it is only right to state to the people that this condition is largely due to the operation of the plant without the reservoir at a time when the amount of chemical to give a taste is only slightly in excess of the amount required to sterilize the water.

When the reservoir was in service the pumps could be operated at a constant speed and the chemical was applied in a steady flow with no change being made in the amount for several days at a time. Now every time water is used at a home a different rate of pumpage is required. This change of pumpage is automatic as far as the pumps are concerned and with the opening and closing of larger valves in the city, is as great as 50 per cent.

The chemical is applied directly into the suction of the high duty pumps and it is impossible for an operator to follow exactly the rapid changes of pumpage with the chemical treatment and only an average quantity can be applied. This results in a varying amount of chemical in the water.

For satisfactory results the average quantity of chemical applied must be such that the minimum amount actually in the water will sterilize the same and the maximum quantity will not cause a taste. With large and sudden fluctuation of pumpage it is impossible to obtain this desired result by hand operation.

Apparatus can be installed for several thousand dollars to carry the quantity of chemical automatically with the pumpage, but as our normal method of operation is to pump steadily to a reservoir only hand control was installed for the chemicals.

Since the reservoir broke an increased quantity of chemical has been used to insure complete sterilization of the varying quantity of water pumped, but due to the taste the amount was decreased last Thursday about 11 per cent. This change will increase the bacterial content of the city water somewhat, and the decreased treatment will not be continued if the bacterial increase is too great for safety.

The amount of chemical used for sterilization is very small in amount, only one part by weight in two million parts of water is used, and it is hard to believe that a variation of 10 per cent in the quantity will cause a taste. While the taste is very objectionable it is harmless to the health and usually means that there is no bacteria in the water.

Until the reservoir is finished there will be, from time to time, slight taste in the water, unless changes are made in the apparatus at the plant, but every care will be taken to avoid this condition as much as possible, and at the same time furnish the city with water having a low bacterial count.

IN CLUTCHES OF THE GRIP

W. B. Tomlinson, veteran newspaper man, who is confined to his home, writes a friend as follows:

"Dear Friend: For about a week I have been laid up at home with a rather assortment of miseries, the effects of an unprovoked attack by a demon called La Grippe. I'm not in any desperate condition physically, but mentally and mentally I am paralyzed. However, the snail has a way of swimming his pneumonia club that I am on the watch for."

Twice I've had the pneumonia and it's three times and—Out! Once there was a fool who wanted to see how close he could drive to the edge of a precipice. That wasn't me. It was the other one. I'm keeping in the house, away back, and in the bed most of the time. Think I feel a little better today, and, if zero comes, it will doubtless help me still more. I can't do anything until the floods and the grip subside and the dry land appears."

Washed Gasoline. Wash the gasoline before using it to remove spots from garments and there will be no more unsightly circles such as are often seen after the cleansing process is completed with the unwashed gasoline.

Put the required amount of gasoline in a glass jar and add an equal amount of soap water, then shake thoroughly. Let stand a few minutes and the dirt and water will settle to the bottom of the jar, leaving the gasoline on top. Turn off the gasoline and it is ready for use.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

MUST PASS "BREATH TEST" TO RIDE IN SPECIAL CAR

The Huntington Herald Dispatch Saturday morning said:

"The Chamber of Commerce at its regular January meeting last night voted to urge the Ohio Valley Electric Company to provide special cars between Huntington, Charlestown and Ashland, for the accommodation of ladies or gentlemen who object to riding on the same cars with 'drunks' or persons who have imbibed too freely in their journeys to and from the neighboring oasis.

"It was the first time the Chamber of Commerce had taken official cognizance of the situation that has arisen as a result of the prohibition law.

"Officials of street car company who attended the meeting indicated ed they would look with favor on the plan, if suitable arrangements could be made.

"It is proposed to charge an extra fare for persons who desire to ride on the projected special cars, and was pointed out that many ladies would be glad to pay for the privilege of traveling in a car from which 'drunks' or objectionable characters were barred."

DOES NOT BELIEVE BONES ARE EVIDENCE OF CRIME

Coroner Dr. Walter Daehler does not attach any importance to the finding of a small box containing some old bones under a house at No. 1831 High street, Friday afternoon.

Coroner Daehler, in fact, said it was impossible to tell whether or not the bones were those of a human being, though saying it was possible that they might be those of a premature born child. He said the box was too small to admit the body of a fully developed child, and therefore thought that there was no need of any further investigation on his part. The box was unearthed by a child's curiosity, was engaged in digging a cellar under the house, which is owned by W. R. Graham. The box was buried two feet under the ground. It was a foot square and a quarter of an inch thick. Pasted on a 2-inch black on the top of the box was a piece of a fashion book of the date 1910.

Mr. Storer notified the police of his find, and they in turn called Coroner Daehler. When Coroner Daehler assumed the attitude that he did, Mr. Storer left the box and home in the place where he had found them.

Anyone knowing themselves indebted to me will do me a great favor by payment of same on or before Wednesday Jan. 19th.

WHY MEN SHOULD ALWAYS ATTEND CHURCH

(Rev. W. T. Gilliland)

The church being the only institution which avowedly ministers to the spiritual needs of men, and proclaims Christian truth as applicable to men's conduct, it should receive not only the recognition, but the moral and necessary material support of men, because:

First. Having been made in the likeness of God, a man should meet the demands of his Creator for worship and contemplation of God's will.

Second. Having an immortal soul, a man should realize it as the most important thing in life that he shall properly and sufficiently minister to the only part of him which is everlasting.

Third. In the extreme hurry and competition of the present day, a man will not find time for true worship and due consideration of God's truth, unless he shall take the time to go to church, where conditions are most conducive to leading his thought away from the merely temporal to things that are of eternal value, and where he shall be strengthened in his soul for making his life what it should be.

Fourth. God has asked for only one-seventh of our time to be exclusively devoted to His worship and honor, and it was meant to serve the double purpose of honoring

God and resting man. There is probably nothing which better fits a man for the continuation of his daily task than a careful keeping of God's day and leaving behind him all the thoughts and cares of business and work-day life while he conscientiously turns his steps to God's house, and his thoughts to the spiritual side of life.

Fifth. With the pressure of commercial and industrial life continuously upon him through all the week, a man absolutely must have brought to his mind the ideals and principles of Jesus for all life, and get back to an impartial and unselfish viewpoint of life as a whole, if he is to do rightly his part in God's world, and is to maintain the integrity of a full-orbed and truly developed character.

Sixth. The church, as no other factor in society, is holding up before men the ideals of Jesus for unselfish living, and is leading men to see that while "religion is individual in its origin, it is social in its expression."

Seventh. Being the disseminator of God's truth, generally speaking, the church is the basis of all that is truly worth while in our civilization, and therefore deserves the loyal support of every man who is willing to acknowledge his honest debt to God.

Last Monday the following article appeared in the Times: "John Robert, wealthy head of the Robert Welding Works, was shot to death at his office by Lillian Piper, a waitress who then shot herself through the head, dying soon afterwards."

Robert's recovery is doubtful. The young woman claimed she had been wronged by Robert and that he had cast her aside. A note pinned to her clothing read:

"The wages of sin is death."

Physicians who attended Robert told him that his recovery was doubtful. At the hospital he is said to have declared that his real name was John Ehrlich and that seven years ago he had deserted his wife and four children in West Philadelphia. He is also said to have told that Lillian Piper, who lived with him at Mrs. Robert's, had deserted her husband, John Piper, in West Philadelphia for him."

INDIANA MAN HAD A DELICATE LIVER

Made Friends Think He Would Not Live, But Black-Draught Liver

Medicine Brought Him Safely Through.

Longottee, Ind.—Mr. Anthony Wilson, of this town, says: "I was born with a delicate liver, which caused a disordered stomach, and my growth was affected by a case of malarial fever. I spent considerable money for treatments, but without any permanent relief."

I commenced using Thedford's Black-Draught at the age of 10, and continued until I was grown, and it cured me, and I consider it a rapid cure in a case like mine.

The people around here said I would never live to be a man, but Thedford's Black-Draught fooled them all.

I am now 27 years of age, and don't have to use Black-Draught only during the change of seasons, to tone up my system. As for my liver trouble, it is gone for good.

I have made many new friends for Thedford's Black-Draught, for it has merit to recommend it."

Thedford's Black-Draught has been the standard household remedy for disorders of the liver, stomach and bowels for over 75 years. You run no risk in trying it for your troubles.

Get a package of Black-Draught today. Your dealer sells it. Costs only one cent a dose.

Lesson III.—First Quarter, For Jan. 16, 1916.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Acts II, 22-41.

Memory Verses, 38, 39—Golden Text, Acts II, 21—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

This is the first recorded sermon of a man named with the Spirit, and if all sermons were molded on the same pattern the Holy Spirit could accomplish much more than He is by an ordinary sermon permitted to do, for in this sermon by Peter the Word of God is the substance of the discourse. He quoted at least four portions of Scripture, the prophecy of Joel II 28-32; Psalms xvi and cx. It was what would be called now a Bible study, and I have learned in forty years of experience that the souls of men everywhere are hungering for the Word of God, and it is written that He alone that it shall not return to Him void and that by it He will accomplish His pleasure (Isa. lv, 11).

Peter quoted from Joel II, 28-32, to show that this manifestation of the Spirit was a fulfillment of that prediction, and not any wild ravings of drunken men. The complete fulfillment of Joel's words will be at the second coming of Christ to judge the nations and open the eyes of Israel (Ezek. lii, 1, 2). Peter then told them that Jesus of Nazareth, whom God had so manifestly approved among them, but whom they had by wicked hands crucified, God had raised from the dead, according to His assurance to David in Ps. xvi and II Sam. vii, and had given Him a place at His own right hand until the time should come for Him to overthrow His enemies according to Ps. cx.

God had told David that He would establish his throne and his kingdom forever in one of his descendants, and our lesson says that David knew that God meant not Solomon, but the Messiah, the Christ (II

WILL WAIT ON OUTCOME OF BOY'S INJURIES BEFORE PROBING CUTTING

Judge Beatty stated today that he had postponed an investigation of the cutting affray until the extent of the injuries of Ralph Smith is fully determined. In the meantime Garland Hunt, knife user, will be in charge of his father, who has promised Judge Beatty to bring him in whenever he is wanted. The court was also prompted in this action by the serious illness of Mrs. G. D. Hunt, the mother of the knife user.

A boys' quarrel lead to a cutting affray that came dangerously near resulting fatally for one of the principals, Ralph Smith, aged 13 years, a son of Police Officer Callahan Smith, Friday evening about 5 o'clock.

The Smith boy was stabbed just over the heart with a pocket knife in the hands of Garland Hunt, 12 year old son of G. D. Hunt, a meat dealer of No. 1541 Gallia street, and also received a cut on the right leg above the knee. The cutting took place in front of the Morning Star office on Second street.

Reports Of Death

Reports spread over town that young Smith had died of his wounds and created considerable excitement. They were perhaps prompted by the fact that the boy fell into a faint just after he was brought home and was with difficulty revived. He spent a restless night, suffering frequent vomiting spells, but appeared much brighter and resting easier Saturday morning. The wound over the heart was not as deep as first supposed, and Dr. W. E. Gault, after examining the injured lad Saturday morning, considered his chances for recovery very bright.

The stabbing was the sequel to an exchange of words the boys had had earlier in the evening or about four o'clock, near the Smith home in the Knittel Flats on Second street. Ralph, according to his story, went out into the alley to empty some garbage and there had quarreled with the Hunt boy. The Hunt boy, he said, took out his knife. There were four or five other boys with him and the larger ones ran him (Smith) into the house. Ralph said he filled his pockets with cakes and about an hour later strolled leisurely down Second street towards the Star office, where he has been in a habit of loitering. Seeing Hunt out in front he told him that he had better "beat it". They got into an argument. Hunt, he said, whipped out his knife and he then did likewise, but pocketed it again, saying he would not fight with a knife and offering to fight fair with fists. Hunt, though, he said, came at him with open knife and began slashing at him. When he saw he had drawn blood he ran into the Star office. Although cut, Smith picked up a rock and threw it at the knife user, according to reports.

Knife User Looked Up

Sheriff Pete Smith and Officer John Nance chanced along just about the time of the cutting and took charge of both boys, placing them in the farmer's machine. Blood spots all over the sidewalk and street attested to the fierceness of the encounter. The Smith boy was left with his parents, and Mrs. Gault, Daehler and Carl and Walter Braunlin responded to hurry calls. The Hunt boy was taken to the county jail and locked up. Judge T. C. Beatty, of the juvenile court, as soon as advised of the unfortunate affair, began a personal investigation. He said that prompted him to believe that one boy was about as much to blame as the other, and that the Smith boy had a knife on also. Besides he had had him before him several times of late, he said.

Says He Disarmed Boy

J. E. Williams, an engineer employed at the Portsmouth Engine Company's plant, says that he disarmed young Hunt, taking the knife from him and turning him over to some one in the Star office. Officer Smith said John Collins, a reporter on the Star, told him that the Hunt boy tried to cut him while he was wrestling the knife from him.

Smith also declared that it was not the Hunt boy's first offense of the kind, claiming that he cut a young son of Capt. Jos. Mohr, a former city fireman, a few years ago. This is denied by Mr. Hunt he insisting that Friday night's affair was the first trouble his son had ever had. He attends the Union street school, while the Smith boy is a pupil of the Lower Fourth street school.

May Get Queen City Speaker

W. B. Anderson, president of the Board of Trade, stated Saturday that he had written to W. C. Culkins, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce of Cincinnati, to recommend a public speaker to address the Board of Trade banquet to be held here January 28. It is likely that one of the best known public speakers of the Queen City will be recommended by Mr. Culkins, who for two weeks has been wrestling with a grip attack.

SENSATION IS NOW BREWING IN TIMES BACHELOR CLUB, OLD MEMBER SUSPICIONED

The expulsion of Member Horace Beloit from membership in The Times Bachelor Club, has forced the members to realize that President Henry Faivre intends to hew close to the line, let the chips fall where they may. Incidentally, it is said, charges are going to be preferred against three members at tonight's session, for word has reached the ears of the worthy president that said members are now engaged. In two instances, it is alleged the expectant brides popped the question, while in the other case it is said to be a downright-on-the-knee proposal on the part of the member. No names, according to rumor, would be given out at the present time. But as soon as charges are preferred, the identity of the guilty parties will be made public. It is further said that the affair will lead to a regular upheaval, for at least one of the members is just shading 50 years, and has been looked upon by the general public as absolutely immune—in fact his name has been prominently mentioned in the nightly doings of the club, and he has been regarded as one of the strongest members of the organization, ever being referred to by President Faivre as a "pillar" in the club. So far, only hear-say evidence has been produced, but the fact that he has absented himself from the councils of the club on four successive nights, has caused President Faivre to take stock in the rumors.

Following the roll call, the following candidates were duly inducted into membership: Walter Schuyler, George Marston, (two works for H. P. Seiler), Joe Schell and Dr. A. L. Test. The following communications have been placed on file:

Editor of the Bachelor Club:

Have followed the items in your daily paper as to the members of the so-called Bachelor Club, and up to date have failed to find the name of one who might not be a bachelor yet, but soon, if some girl don't help him out and say the word. He is no other than Edward Leel, the obliging clerk at Reilly's book store. Now girls Eddie is a good catch. Don't think he is a woman hater for he is not, he loves the dear girl but is so backward; he is a house boy, kind hearted, never gets mad and know he can't help making an ideal husband.

ISABELLE

President Faivre:

We came pleading to you in behalf of Theo. Schirmer, the real estate man who is anxious to join the Bachelor Club. He is too timid to ask admittance. We will give a fair description so you will know him when you see him. He is handsome, like all real estate men, short and plump, nice rasy cheeks, plump little feet, pretty brown eyes, lovely brown hair, which is parted on the side and bombed into a nice little curl. This being the year of 1916 girls, it is time to get busy for he is too bashful to pop the question. We know he would make some one a lovely husband. What would be a home without Theodore. Just thirty past, over into bachelorhood. But that's no sin; he is no good. Come Theodore, get up courage before the fair damsel come pleading with you to take them as your helpmate. With eyes so brown, And cheeks so red, He lives in town.

But he will earn the bread. Theodore! How we adore thee. Billy Butt-in is not near so bashful as Theodore.

"WE ARE ELEVEN."

Editor of Bachelor Club:

Dear Sir: In looking over the Daily Times each evening we find that you have omitted the names of what we think are two of the best prospects for the Bachelor's Club. These two are Charles Knapp and Carmel Jaynes. Of course, you understand they are already spoken for, but we thought we ought to put their names in print anyway.

Yours,
SADIE AND ELLEN.

Editor Times Bachelor Club:

Here are some West Side bachelor names that Portsmouth girls will be glad to read of. They are all big farmers.

Charles Simons, Frank Grumme, Bill Grumme, William Apperton, Herman Winters, Austin Craig, Jack Dalton, Nick Young, Jim Pyles, John Pyles, Thomas Wills and Bernard Sommer.

Now girls get busy and pick out you a nice looking hubby out of this bunch.

JACK.

Editor Bachelors' Club:

It seems an unpardonable error that the name of T. J. Liston has thus far escaped publication in the bachelors' roll.

The name of such a congenial fellow should certainly head the list in shining letters. So courteous, so knightly and so lovable. Oh! Girls he is the sweetest fellow. Then too Tom likes nothing better than to prepare his own breakfast on a cold, crispy morning which makes him a golden opportunity.

And we hope that ere the curtain falls on 1916 that same sweet maiden will have rescued our hero from the terrible ranks of the "Left-overs."

The most economical, cleansing and germicidal of all antiseptics is

Paxtine

A soluble Antiseptic Powder to be dissolved in water as needed.

As a medicinal antiseptic for douches in creating catarrh, inflammation or ulceration of nose, throat, and caused by tamponing it has no equal. For ten years the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. has recommended Paxtine in their private correspondence with women, which proves its superiority. Women who have been cured say it is "worth its weight in gold." ## OVERLAND AUTO SHOW A SUCCESS

A big event in the week in automobile circles was the Cleveland Automobile Show, which opened last Sunday and closes tomorrow night. It was the biggest automobile show ever held in Cleveland, and drew the largest attendance. An Automobile Accessory Show was held in connection with it, the majority of manufacturers shipping their exhibits direct from the New York show last week.

Denies Rumor

It has been rumored about the East End for the past few days that Charles Simpson was contemplating the erection of a motion picture theatre on his lot east of the Crystal Palace billiard parlors on Gallia street. When asked about the matter Saturday, Mr. Simpson said that there was nothing in the rumor, and that he had no plans along that line.

Will Return Home

Louis T. Cook of East Chicago, Ind., formerly of this city, who has been visiting his brother, R. H. Cook, of Robinson avenue, and his sister, Cordelia Cook, of Gephart's, will return home Saturday evening.

Boy Plays Sleuth Role

Ray Clevenger, a newsboy, had his suspicions aroused by the sight of a man running through an alley from the direction of the Excelsior shoe factory with what appeared to be a pair of shoes in his hands early Saturday morning. He reported the facts to the police. Chief Henry Clark complimented him for so doing and said he would investigate.

OHIO STATE LEAGUE MEMBERS WILL MEET

William N. Gahleman, president of the Ohio State baseball club here, will go to Cincinnati, Sunday, to attend a meeting of the club owners of the Ohio State league.

It will be held in the Hotel Hamilton and President Joe Carr, of Columbus, will preside over it.

It is likely that an eight club circuit will be formed, or steps will be taken to this end. President Carr believes the new year will bring about the desired results in a baseball and Carlett'sburg failed to come through with a joint team, an effort will be made to put a team in Hamilton. The towns spoken of are Portsmouth, Ashland and Carlett'sburg, Chillicothe, Mansville, Lexington, Frankfort and Winchester.

THE MARKETS

MARKET SUMMARY

New York, Jan. 15.—War stocks and shares of companies of having Mexican connections were the chief features of this week's irregular and professional stock market. Liquidation and short selling of the munition issues began early and reached its height during the mid-week with disastrous effects to some of the more speculative shares, particularly Crucible Steel which fell to less than half of its high price of a few months ago.

The Mexican situation was responsible for the severe break in Mexican Petroleum and American Smelting, other shares of like character declining in sympathy. Substantial recoveries were scored throughout the list later with heavy covering of short contracts. In fact, much of the week's depression was attributed to the operations of the bears especially in financial stocks.

United States Steel and Standard rails moved uncertainly at times but at no time registered more than nominal losses. Discussion regarding the Gary statement continued, but the adverse effects of that development were counter-balanced by the continued activity in the steel industry. Coppers were less conspicuous but recent high prices for the metal were maintained. Demand for the metal, especially for export, is increasing and according to trade reports as much as 24% cents is being offered for the refined metal by foreign consumers.

Trade in general shows some falling off, as compared with the big volume of holiday business, but bank clearings indicate a plethora of money at reserve centers. Railroad tonnage is still so large as to make a continuance of the recent embargo necessary.

The only direct reflection of the European situation was offered by the erratic course of foreign exchange. Remittances on Germany hardened perceptibly and rates on London and Paris were firm but Italian exchange fell to its lowest record, mainly as a result of unsatisfactory economic conditions in that country.

New York, N. Y., Jan. 15.—The actual condition of clearing house banks and trust companies for the week shows that they held $172,518,370 reserve in excess of legal requirements. This is an increase of $18,696,110.

NEW YORK STOCKS

New York, Jan. 15.—Trading was very active today but the movement was more or less confined. Specialties like Bethlehem Steel, International Nickel, American Coal Products and New York Air Brake made extreme gains of 5 to 18 points, but other issues of that class rose only modestly. Mexican issues were again under the spell of depression and rails were dull and irregular while U. S. Steel was under persistent pressure. Mercantile Marine issues were again the outstanding features, the preferred stock rising 2 1/2 to the new record of 92 1/2 and the 4 1/2 per cent certificates 2 1/2 to 101 1/4, also a new maximum. The closing was irregular. Bonds were strong with further heavy dealings in New York Central Debentures.

Such activity as attended today's initial trading was again limited to speculative issues, particularly those forming the so-called munitions group. Gains of a point were made by American Coal, American Locomotive, and Mexican Petroleum, while Crucible Steel, Industrial Alcohol and International Nickel secured material advances. The movement was rather irregular, however, other prominent specialties, including Baldwin Locomotive, California Petroleum, Studebaker and Lackawanna Steel falling from substantial fractions to almost two points. Mercantile Marine issues were again extremely active the 4 1/2 per cent bonds advancing 2 points to the high record of 101 1/4.

CHICAGO GRAIN AND PROVISIONS
Chicago, Ill., Jan. 15.—Rumors that the British government had released many vessels to bring about more liberal shipments from Australia and Argentina, led to a sharp decline today in the wheat market here.

Announcement of a fresh advance to a new high record in ocean freight rates, from the United States tended to emphasize the bear side, notwithstanding that stocks in Europe and on passage for there are the greatest at any corresponding time in ten years.

Opening prices which ranged from 1/2 to 1 1/2 lower, with May at 1.28 1/4 to 1.29 1/4, and July at 1.19 1/4 to 1.20 1/4, were followed by only a slight rally.

Later the market hardened owing to Winnipeg reports that farmers were free buyers of futures. Reduction of the Brazilian duty on flour also gave a little encouragement to the bulls. The close was unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to 1/4 advance with May 1.27 1/4 and July 1.21.

Prospects of enlarged receipts weakened corn. Breaking of the drought in Argentina counted somewhat, too, against the bulls. After opening 1/4 to 1/2 lower, the market underwent a slight further sag.

Improved demand from the sea board helped afterward to cause a recovery to some extent. The close was steady at a loss of 1/4 to 1/2 cents.

Corn eased off with corn and wheat. Trade commission houses, with resting orders were active buyers, however, at 50 cents for May delivery.

Weakness in grain and hogs made provisions decline, regardless of big shipments of late from here. Signs pointed to liberal arrival of hogs next week.

Increased buying on the part of outsiders caused a subsequent upturn. Offerings became scarce.

COEVICTED

struck her upon the head with a rock. The state charged that the alleged act was committed for the purpose of inheriting a large sum of money given Mrs. Price by her father, David H. Fridley, a wealthy pioneer, after whom the town of Fridley, Minn., is named. Etchison, chief witness for the prosecution, repeated on the witness stand the substance of a confession he made early in December after his arrest in connection with the woman's death. He testified that Price promised to cancel a note of $1,200 and in addition pay him $3,500 if he would accompany Price to the cliff and then remain silent regarding the affair.

On March 22 last, Price, filed suit for $7,500 damages against the city, charging negligence in failing to provide a fence as a guard at the edge of the cliff, over which he said his wife fell to her death while pursuing a pet dog. When the case came up for hearing on October 29, the question of the legality of Price's marriage was raised, counsel for the city contending that he had failed to divorce his first wife, and therefore was not legally wedded to Mary Fridley.

Three days later Price withdrew the damage suit. A warrant then was issued charging him with bigamy and on November 12 he was taken into custody. He pleaded not guilty.

An indictment charging first degree murder was returned by the grand jury December 1, and Price again was arrested. On the same day a first degree murder indictment was returned against Etchison who was almost immediately arrested in Washington, D. C., and returned to Minneapolis. It was while on his way to this city that Etchison made the statement to the assistant county prosecutor charging Price with the crime.

After the death of Mary Fridley Price, his third wife, Price married Miss Carrie Olson, of Minneapolis.

Because of the prominence of the Fridley family, and the social connections of Mary Fridley Price, the case attracted wide attention.

THOUGHTS AND PRAYER KAISER ASKS AS A BIRTHDAY TRIBUTE

Berlin, Jan. 15.—(Wireless to Sayville).—Emperor William has issued a public pronouncement requesting the German nation to celebrate his coming birthday January 27, on which date he enters the fifty-eighth year of his age, with only quiet thoughts and prayer. Whoever wishes to give special expression to his feelings is urged by the Emperor to do so in the form of gifts, in order that wounds inflicted by the war may be healed and in order that soldier's families may be better cared for. The Emperor further says: "It is still necessary that the heart, thoughts and strength of the German nation both in the field and at home, be directed to the one great aim of gaining a decisive victory and winning a peace which, as far as the human mind can conjecture, shall permanently safeguard the country against a repetition of hostile attacks."

London, Jan. 15.—Prince Henry of Prussia has been summoned to Berlin, according to a Central News despatch from Berne. It is also announced, says the despatch, that Emperor William's birthday festivities for January 27, have been cancelled.

Prince Henry of Prussia is a brother of the German Emperor and the inference probably intended in the news agency despatch is that he is summoned to Berlin in connection with the illness of Emperor William. What appeared to be an authoritative announcement that the Emperor's illness was not serious was contained in a Berlin despatch earlier in the week.

A wireless message from Berlin today said the Emperor had asked that his coming birthday be celebrated quietly and in prayer by the German nation, but that whoever wished to give a special expression to his feelings, was urged to do so by gifts for the care of the afflicted in the war and of soldiers' families.

A Fine Aid For Mother-to-be

We are all greatly indebted to those who tell their experiences. And among the many things which we read about and are of immediate importance to the expectant mother, is a splendid maternal remedy called "Mother's Friend." This is applied over the muscles of the stomach. It is deeply penetrating in its influence. Mothers everywhere tell of its soothing effect, how it allays pains incident to stretching of cords, hemorrhoids and muscles. They tell of restful comfort, of calm, peaceful nights, an absence of those distresses peculiar to the period of expectancy, relief from morning sickness, no more of that apprehension which so many young women's minds become burdened. It is a splendid help. Get a bottle of "Mother's Friend" from your nearest druggist. Ask your husband to get it for you. Then write to Bradford Regulator Co., 405 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for a very handsome and instructive book. It is filled with suggestive ideas of great help to all women interested in the subject of maternity. And best of all are some letters from mothers that are real inspirations. Write today.

EXPLOSION WRECKS

per men that he would make an investigation.

The submarine E-2 was built in 1910 and displaced 430 tons. She was capable of traveling 14 knots on the surface and eleven knots when submerged. The E-2 in September, 1914, had a narrow escape from an accident similar to that which befell the E-4 outside Honolulu harbor. While the submarine was engaged in maneuvers off Breton reef lightship, Ensign Gilliam detected electric gas when the vessel was submerged fifty feet. He ran to the surface by using the pumps instead of blowing up the tanks. When the submarine reached the surface the conning tower was quickly opened to give the crew fresh air. Every one of the nineteen members of the crew, it is said, were affected by the gas, some bleeding from the nose and mouth. The E-2 was the only vessel in the world equipped with the Edison nickel batteries and she made her first trip successfully with them on December last. With Lieutenant Charles M. Cooke, Jr., in command, the E-2 made an extensive run on the surface, then dived and maneuvered for several hours. After these experiences the E-2 made a successful run submerged and the crew found no trace of gas. The run proved, it was declared on good authority, that the new batteries gave better speed with less fuel. The E-2 went into commission at Boston in the spring of 1912. The boat was built in the yards of the Electric Boat Company at Fore River, Mass. The E-2 with her sister ship, E-1, were the first two naval vessels to be equipped with the Diesel Oil burning, interior combustion engines and they were the first submarines to be equipped with wireless telegraphy apparatus.

ARRESTED ON CHARGE OF CONSPIRACY

M. Paso, Texas, Jan. 15.—Luis Puentes, a son-in-law of the late General Victoriano Huerta, and Aristarco Carrascosa, who were indicted recently at San Antonio as participants in the alleged Huerta conspiracy to start a new revolt in Mexico, were taken into custody today by agents of the United States department of justice. Puentes gave bail and was released.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15.—General Carranza's formal reply to representatives from the United States, demanding that he run down and punish the murderers of American citizens at Santa Ysabel, Mexico, still was awaited today, although direct assurances had come from him that this would be done. Despite renewed demands in congress for intervention in Mexico, there were no indications today of a change in the administration's policy to give Carranza and the defunct government of Mexico a free hand in running down the assassins of Americans and in restoring order and protecting foreigners in that republic.

While rabbit hunting Saturday afternoon near their home at Schults, Ky., five miles back of Fullerton, Ky., Foraker Hunt, aged 12, was accidentally shot in the neck and shoulder by his brother Robert Hunt, aged 14, it was reported at Fullerton Saturday afternoon.

It is said that a clump of weeds obscured Foraker Hunt from his brother's vision and when he fired at a rabbit his brother was in the path of the shotgun. According to word received at Fullerton the victim's condition is said to be serious.

Several shots lodged in the boy's neck and shoulder, it is claimed. Thomas Hunt, father of the boys, is a well-known farmer.

Sulphur and a volcano.

Sulphur deposits are found on White Island, in the bay of Plenty, on the coast of the North Island of New Zealand, about thirty miles from the mainland. This island, which covers about 600 acres, attains a height of 900 feet on one side and opens to the sea on the other. Its topography indicates an old crater, and the boiling lake on the island, which is one of the awe inspiring sights of New Zealand, is a further evidence of volcanism. After the New Zealand Sulphur company had spent $100,000 in preparation for mining sulphur in this locality a volcanic disturbance wrecked the camp and killed ten men.—Argonaut.

BUENA VISTA HACKMAN, INDICTED, CHARGED WITH SELLING LIQUOR; PRISONERS ARRAIGNED

Two secret indictments returned by the grand jury Thursday came to light Saturday morning in common pleas court during the arraignment of the indicted prisoners before Judge Thomas.

James Ryan, of Buena Vista, the driver of the automobile back between Buena Vista and Portsmouth, was indicted on two counts, each charging him with selling liquor without a license. He was served with a copy of the indictment Saturday morning by Sheriff Smith, and accompanied that officer to the court house to register his pleas.

The other secret indictment contained two counts, one of perjury, the other of forgery, against William M. Browning, whose troubles with his wife, Sylvia Browning, have landed him in court on divers occasions during the past few months.

Browning is charged with having forged the name of his wife to a receipt for $6, which he stated under oath was for alimony paid to her. It afterward developed that the money had never been paid, and that he swore falsely. In common pleas court, Browning pleaded guilty to the forgery charge, and was given an indeterminate sentence in the Ohio penitentiary. The court, charging forgery was nolle prosequi the recommendation of the prosecutor.

Ryan, the hackman, is charged in the indictment with having sold liquor to Roy Boland and William Smith. He entered a plea of guilty to the transaction with Boland, but pleaded not guilty to the second count. The court, however, reserved sentence until he has had time to thoroughly investigate the alleged offense, and Ryan was released on $300 bond to appear upon the order of the court.

Ryan made a full and complete statement to the court which prompted Judge Thomas to decide upon an investigation before passing sentence.

Had Taken Ten Cents For Carrying

It seems, from his statement, that for several months past, it has been the custom of people living in and about Buena Vista to order their liquor through Ryan, who purchased it in this city and delivered it to them for a stipulated charge of ten cents. He told Judge Thomas that on no occasion had he profited more than ten cents on a quart, his regular charge for carrying any package of that size and weight.

He claimed that during the holidays he took a number of orders for quarts of whiskey, some of his patrons telling him that they would call for their purchases some time during the week.

He said that at one time during the holidays, he had probably fifty or twenty quarts of whiskey in his house, awaiting for the rightful owners to come and claim it.

It was during that time, he says, that Roy Boland came to him and asked him to purchase him a quart of whiskey. Instead of making a special trip, he says he allowed Boland to have one of the quarts he had purchased for another man, intending to replace it with the money he had charged Boland. Boland, he added, was charged the ten cents extra for hauling.

The case presents a problem for the court to ferret out, and he indicated that he would investigate it thoroughly before pronouncing sentence.

Ryan disclaimed any knowledge of a transaction with William Smith, with which he is charged in the second count of the indictment.

Mr. Ryan Has Good Reputation

Ryan is a man of excellent reputation in the community in which he lives, and he experienced no trouble in securing a bondsman, several men at the court house offering to go his security. It is generally admitted that Ryan's main interest in the delivery of liquor is to accommodate his patrons, and not with a desire to dispose of it at a profit.

Pleads Not Guilty

Robert McGraw, self-confessed slayer of John Harrison near Upper Twin Creek on last Christmas Eve, entered a plea of not guilty to the indictment charging him with murder in the second degree. Attorney Theodore K. Funk was appointed to defend him, the prisoner being without funds to employ counsel.

Forger Sent To The Pen

An indeterminate sentence in the Ohio penitentiary was given Charles Jones, former employee of John E. Williams, of Second street, who pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with forging the name of his employer to a check for $10, which he afterward cashed at the Gay Corner Cafe.

The court grew out of patience with Jones because of his persistent effort to plead ignorance of the crime after admitting his guilt, and trying to work upon the compassion of the court by telling stories which the court said no intelligent man could believe. It was only after the court exhausted his patience with the prisoner that Jones told what the court held was a straight forward story. The indictment charging uttering a forged check was nolle prosequi.

Two More Sent To Pen

George Wilson and Embra Coleman, two negroes involved in fights in a C. & O. Northern construction camp near Harrisonville on last Christmas Day, were given indeterminate sentences in the Ohio penitentiary on their pleas of guilty to indictments charging them with cutting with intent to kill and these indictments were afterward nolle prosequi. Coleman is charged with having shot Harry Davis while Wilson's victim was Harry Battimer.

Frank Belton, a strange negro, pleaded guilty to carrying concealed weapons, and received a sentence of $10 fine and ninety days in the Cincinnati workhouse. He was arrested on suspicion by Detective Andy Leslie of the N. & W., who found a loaded revolver upon him when he was searched.

Luke Jones, another negro, pleaded not guilty to the charge of turning an angle cock on an N. & W. freight car in the local yards on October 26. Attorney Joseph P. Coates was appointed by the court to defend him.

Melvin Jenkins and George Raymer, both white, indicted separately and jointly of burglary, each pleaded not guilty, and Attorney Alex C. Woodrow was appointed to defend him. They are charged with having broken into the store of Alex Campbell on the West Side on the night of November 20 last and with having robbed the store of goods valued at $14.35.

Sent To Reformatory

George Gruber and Mile Miller, foreigners, who were principals in an altercation at the C. & O. construction camp near Sciotoville on November 13 last, were sentenced to the Mansfield Reformatory upon their pleas of guilty. Gruber to shooting with intent to wound, and Miller with cutting with intent to wound. Both prisoners were slightly wounded in the encounter.

A fine of $5 and costs was assessed against Cecil McLaughlin, who pleaded guilty to a charge of assault and battery. McLaughlin is the young man who struck Paul Bauer on the jaw in front of the Manhattan restaurant a few weeks ago, the blow fracturing Bauer's jaw.

At the request of one of her attorneys, Noah J. Dever, the arraignment of Mrs. Marie Ferguson Churchill, indicted on a charge of shooting with intent to kill, was postponed until Monday morning in order to give him time to consult with her about the case.

ATTENDED MEETING

Dr. Joseph Lake has returned from Columbus, where he attended the annual meeting of the Ohio Veterinary Medical Association. The meetings were held in the veterinary laboratory of the Ohio State University and 100 delegates from all parts of Ohio were present. A number of fine papers were read at the meeting. It closed with a big banquet.

MOVIE

Temple Theatre
We have for our program tonight a feature in 4000 feet made by the Edison film company, a very strong story of surging hate and noble love entitled "The Ploughshare." The beautiful southern mountains of Virginia's back grounds lend beauty and impressiveness to a deeply heart-stirring drama of the old romantic south, played by beautiful Gertrude McCoy, Robert Connors and Augustus Phillips. The scene between Gertrude and the man who dishonored her, then slaying her brother are strong and convincing. The final scene is very pathetic, when the real murderer tells his ghostly tale and confession to his brother, the governor.

Chas. Freund Appointed

Charles Freund was appointed in probate court Saturday as administrator of the estate of his sister, the late Katherine Freund, which consists of $1000 in personal property and $5500 in real property. He gave bond in the sum of $1000.

Kearns Favors "Intervention" In Dealing With Mexico

The Enquirer, Cincinnati, Saturday printed interviews from Ohio Congressmen touching upon the National Administration's policy in the Mexican situation. Among those quoted was one from Congressman C. C. Kearns, of this district, which is given in full below:

"It seems to me we ought to do something to stop the slaughter of Americans in Mexico. The reign of anarchy is worse than ever, and the Mexicans are making a plaything out of this government. It looks to me like unless the United States does something soon, some European nation will sweep the Monroe Doctrine aside and go down there and protect its own subjects. I believe that is what they should do. If this country cannot protect the subjects of foreign countries, those countries are entitled to protect their own subjects."

EX-MAYOR MAKES APPEAL FOR FLOOD PROTECTION

Former Mayor Adam Frick has just addressed letters to Hon. Atlee Pomeroy and Hon. Warren G. Harding, the United States Senators from Ohio, and also to Congressman Charles C. Kearns on the subject of river improvement.

Following is Mr. Frick's letter in full:
Hon. Atlee Pomeroy, United States Senator, Washington, D. C.
My dear Senator: Observation discloses the necessity of increasing the carrying capacity of rivers such as the Ohio and Scioto, which receive the flow of water from drained and deforested lands, to prevent existing unusual floods and arrest further waste of the nation's agricultural resources.

This attention, it seems to me, must come from the federal government. The importance of which is a very large measure supercedes the need of improving these waterways for transportation purposes or undertaking the proposed expenditure of the nation's strength in manhood or waste the husbanded resources of the forest and the mines for preparedness. The pretense of which is to guard against an imaginary foe, the real of which does not at this time, neither will such be possible to exist after those engaged have lost their strength of arms, reduced their navies to the bottom of the seas and depleted the resources in liquidating their applied debt, except that the nation, a small part of whom now deem defense a necessity, furnish them with the implements of warfare or the means to acquire such, which cannot be conceived as a possibility.

The growing need of the grain from the soil has made it necessary that the land be cleared of its timber and the surface drained of its excess moisture that tillage may follow. This being true, then it cannot be that the fields may ever again be returned to their native state of forests and swamps, but that the existing conditions must be adjusted to the present needs. Through such transformation, insuring the production of food commodities and the building and drainage of cities, the water from the rainfall and melting snow is forced immediately into the streams which must receive the abnormal quantity without having been correspondingly increased in their capacities, floods must follow.

These rivers are, in fact, less in area at this time than when the lands were in their virgin state. This is due to the encroachment of manufacturing plants, the erection of bridges, construction of wharves and the growth of timber along their banks, as well as the formation of bars within the stream, must necessarily infer that they must be straightened and deepened to decrease the distance, increase the velocity, and thus insure a greater carrying capacity.

These streams in their meanderings flow from one to the other side of the valleys, where each time they reverse themselves and not only increase the distance and decrease the velocity, but cause erosion of their banks at each turn, and into their waters fall the earth's most productive acreage, thus reducing the total farming area to the extent of washing away the soil, therefore, they should, as far as practical, be straightened, if for no other reason than husbanding this resource. The channel should also be deepened, in addition to clearing the banks from obstruction, which will increase the capacity to the extent, and, if possible adopted, that will of erasing for the artificial amount of drainage from the soil, and when much-needed protection, leaving to straightened and deepened would your honor the method of accomplishing the water within narrower spaces, and through an increased

SOCIETY

The handsome home of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Williams, on Gallia avenue, was the scene of a beautiful pink and white luncheon today, at one o'clock, when Mrs. Williams entertained a few friends to announce the engagement of Mr. Williams' cousin, Miss Lillian Thomas, the very attractive and only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Thomas, of Fourth street, to Mr. John A. Brunny, the popular young bookkeeper for the Tracy Shoe Company. The large round table was set with handsome china, cut-glass and silver, the adornments being a large French basket of pink carnations, narcissus and ferns. Pink Cupids and hearts and pink-shaded candles also added much to the beauty of the board, where covers were laid for fourteen guests, all friends or relatives of the sweet young bride-to-be. When the guests were seated, Mrs. Williams placed a bridal veil on Miss Thomas' head, thus revealing the secret of the engagement. At each place were cardboard dolls attired as brides. They were hand-painted, and the names of the bride and groom-to-be and the date of the wedding, February 8th, was inscribed on these. The delicious menu was beautifully served in four courses. Between each course The Flower Love Story was an interesting feature, questions being answered with the names of flowers. The first question being answered with "Lily," being appropriate to the bride, and another one, "Johnny Jump Up," being appropriate to the groom, and "Jack-in-the-pulpit" appropriate to the minister, Rev. John W. Dunning, who will say the ceremony. The wedding will be a quiet affair, at the home of the bride's parents. The young couple will go to house-keeping in the second floor of the Milner flat on Fourth street. Miss Thomas has hosts of friends here, in her home town, as well as in Oak Hill and other near-by places, where she is well known. Mr. Brunny is a fine young man, with excellent habits and is worthy of the sweet young bride of his choice. The Times joins their many friends in congratulations.

Mr. and Mrs. James Beckett, (Georgia Price) of Columbus, are visiting the latter's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Price, of Center street. Mrs. Beckett is a daughter of John Price, of Columbus, formerly of this city, and her husband is a son of former State Senator Beckett, of Franklin county.

Miss Elizabeth Dice will leave next week for a few days' visit with her sister, Mrs. Harry Doty, of Iron-ton.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stevens, of Columbus, who formerly resided on Fifth street, are here visiting local relatives and friends.

ALL ARE SINNERS AND ALL NEED SALVATION

—SAYS EVANGELIST REED

ANOTHER GREAT SESSION IS HELD; MANY MEETINGS COMING SUNDAY

(By C. W. Weyand)

Promptly at 7:15 the bells once more proclaimed the meeting at Trinity. Soon after, Prof. Grant had every one interested in a soul-stirring song service. The large chorus which is well representative of the various co-operating churches responded especially heartily to his leadership. But the big choir man seemed determined to get the people into the singing and before long he had succeeded. "Enthusiasm begets enthusiasm," proved to be the professor's successful method, but he did not get just the co-operation he was seeking until he announced a few of the good old-fashioned gospel message songs: "Whoever Will, May Come," "I Love Him," and "Revive Us Again."

Evangelist Reed is a firm believer in the power of song to carry home the gospel message. The people come early so as not to miss any of the musical part of the service.

Rev. Strecker prayed for a spirit of soul winning to possess the Christian people of the city.

Coming Subjects

Evangelist Reed took time to carefully announce three important approaching meetings: Sunday, 2:00 p. m. for men only, "Sowing and Reaping"; Sunday, 7:00 p. m. "The Judgment Day," and Monday, 7:00 p. m. "Some Plain Truths About the Dance."

This last sermon has been described as "The Cleanest talk on the dirtiest subject." The preacher made it clear that from now on he intended to hew to the mark and let the chips fall where they will.

Misses Aylesworth Sing Beautiful

A hush of pleased anticipation seemed to sweep over the great audience when Prof. Grant announced that the Misses Aylesworth would sing. "What Will It Be To See Jesus?" was the soul-searching question in song and so effectively was it rendered that when the last note had died away the meaning lingered and held the thought of the people.

Synopsis Of Sermon

The preacher plunged into his subject, taking for his text the latter part of the 22nd and all of the 23rd verse of the third chapter of Romans: "There is no difference. For all have sinned, and come short of the glory of God."

"There is no difference, all have sinned, ranging throughout his message and was brought home to the hearts of his hearers by logic, anecdote and humor.

The evangelist set out with the definite determination to knock the props out from under every self-righteous person in his audience. All seemed agreed that he accomplished his purpose.

He allowed no one to escape his arraignment. "Every man a sinner," nor the conclusion "everybody needs salvation." In a multitude of descriptive and narrative sketches the speaker led his audience to see human life as it is, sinful and sin-slaved. In stinging sentences he drew pictures of "fives turned into servant girls because of the stinginess of their husbands, of lives ruined because of character-assassinating gossip, of women who made clubs and lodges their god."

In recounting the story of a man whose sermon was once interrupted by a drunk, opportunity was seized for a passionate outburst against the Boozing Business and those who through their ballot boxes make partners in its fruitage.

In this case the drunkard was arrested and thrown into jail. Mr. Reed visited the judge and protested his arrest, declaring that those who made the man drunk should suffer the punishment. "But who are responsible?" demanded the speaker! "The saloon exists only with the consent of those who vote for it and if you voted to keep saloons in Ohio then you are one of the parties to every booze-caused crime in the state," he declared. "When you pick up your paper and read the horrifying details of a booze-caused murder, if you voted for the saloon you must face the charge of murder before God's bar of justice, because you are a party to the hideous crime. I have just as much respect for the saloon keeper as I have for the man who votes for the continuance of the business."

"But there is no difference, all have sinned. In thought, word or deed man has riddled the commandments. A person is self-deceived who says I have kept the law unbroken. Everyone in Portsmouth is alike in that they have sinned."

The Ten Commandments were not given, the preacher declared, to save man but to bring man to a realization of sin. The law served as a looking glass to show a man his sin; from which would

Another Big Crowd Stirred By Sermon At Union Revival

(By Milford Keyes)

Another large crowd was at Trinity last night, fully equal to that of the night before.

The singing of "Whiter Than Snow" by the choir and congregation was a glorious rendition, and other pieces were equally attractive. Prof. Grant was at his best and he has the choir tuned up to a high condition of efficiency. The Aylesworth sisters sang a duet in their usually fine manner.

Rev. Reed took his text from the first chapter of Romans and twenty-second verse: "Professing themselves wise, they became fools."

The text is full to repletion of theological meat, and the evangelist worked it for all it was worth. He was hard on clubs when the clubs interfered with the spirituality of the members. He was called upon to preach a club sermon once upon a time and a crowd of eight hundred club men were present and not a woman. He told some plain truths and one intoxicated man interrupted him and was taken out by the police and locked up. He went to police headquarters and urged the man's release. "You have locked up the wrong man; why don't you arrest the man who made him drunk?"

The evangelist held that the man who sells liquor is equally as guilty with the man who drinks it, and the man who votes for the open saloon is guilty as either. He said the Golden Rule and all other good rules was violated by the scandal monger. Because a man leads a seemingly upright life is no sign that he is not a sinner in the sight of God. There are no degrees of sin in God's meaning. "If you have not been regenerated you are a sinner, no odds how pure your life, you are as much a sinner as the inhabitant of the slums. All lies are alike to God, big lies, little lies and lies in between."

He said many people think they are doing things because they keep the ten commandments. "The ten commandments are God's looking glass, held up before men that they may see how sinful they are. They do not save, and the soul that sinneth shall die."

"How many of you men would like to have your wives know what you do when you go to Cincinnati? What tales the telephone girls could tell if they were permitted to tell them."

All are sinners until Christ enters the heart and regeneration ensues. The dancing sinner and the card playing sinner was no better than the outbreathing sinner, in the sight of God, if neither are regenerated.

We will hear from Mr. Reed at greater length on these subjects during the coming week. The meetings closed with the usual call to seekers.

NOTES

The noonday meetings at dry headquarters are largely in the nature of executive sessions and no foreigner though he was born secrecy is the order of the day. There is no chance for a reporter any in one of the South American spring a desire for salvation. When a man measures himself by God's yard stick, salvation becomes a necessity to satisfy his sense of need.

Here the evangelist reached his climax. Would you wish to have exposed a picture of your real inner life and thought, the question hurled at the self righteous. "No, all have sinned and come short of the glory of God. And the soul that sinneth, it shall die." Is then all darkness and sin? When you get to the place where you can say, "God be merciful to me a sinner," there is a chance for you to claim salvation.

The preacher concluded with an appeal for people to be honest with themselves, to acknowledge their sin and seek pardon at the foot of the cross.

Nursery Planned

It was announced that plans are under way for establishing a nursery in the church so that mothers can bring their babies and leave them under safe guardianship while they enjoy the service.

This will be welcome news to many who are finding it difficult to come to the meetings.

republics and head of a Methodist college for native youth when the Manly pastor made his infantile howl to the world. He grew up the same as a native boy and of course imbibed the Spanish language along with other accomplishments. His parents were natives of Southern Ohio.

Bigelow might be called the "mother of churches." In addition to her big and handsome daughters, Trinity and Manly, there was formerly a chapel in the East End, which moved on to New Boston when the East End grew and was absorbed by the advancing city. Then there is Wesley Hall Mission, an aspiring and aggressive young daughter, and the late Zala Mission was a hunting of Bigelow. The old church has given liberally of her means and talent to many rising churches in neighboring villages and country places on both sides of the river. She has many stars in her crown.

Evangelist Reed's subject Sunday evening will be "Judgment Day." This is one of his most powerful sermons and all should hear it who possibly can. Monday night he will deliver a sermon on dancing. This sermon is said to border on the sensational and is for the benefit of dancing church members. Dancers are urged to come out and hear it.

A nursery will be instituted for the benefit of mothers who have babies who wish to take part in the meetings and at the same time know that their infants are properly taken care of. Volunteer nurses are called for, and the same will please report to Rev. Strecker.

J. W. Jordan of Manly, is one of the much interested workers at the meetings. His son is one of the ushers.

Evangelist Reed says there is much made in many places of the high cost of living. He says the real trouble is with the cost of high living. Everybody must have just what every other body has and the men are as bad as the women in this respect. No man wants another man to have a better car than he has and up goes the price of living. "It is in the power of every one, he said, to so regulate his life and expenses that there will be enough for all. "It is no wonder that so many seemingly good men go busted." He said the women think more of their club than they do of their home and never go to prayer meeting. There is no salvation in a club or in a lodge, he said. Some lodges are good things as far as they go but they don't go far enough. They may take a man beautifully and pleasantly through life, but they stop at the threshold of salvation. They can go no further.

Rev. Reed did not think much of the practice of sending a committee to investigate an evangelist when a church is thinking of employing one. He says when a committee calls to investigate him he investigates the committee.

The audiences at Trinity are splendid ones, but there appears to be a lack of young people in attendance. There are a great many snow-white heads and some heads with not much hair of any kind in the assembly and a great mass of middle-aged people, but the young element is lacking. Perhaps the evangelist has noticed this, and hence his impassioned appeals to the church members to get right with God.

TANLAC'S GOOD REPUTATION CONVINCED THIS WOMAN

A good reputation is the best thing in life and a good reputation is worth as much to a medicine as it is to a man.

The truth of this was brought out by the story told by Mrs. John Fisher, wife of a well known plasterer of this city, who resides at 1022 Twelfth street, recently at the Fisher & Streich Pharmacy.

Because Tanlac had earned a splendid reputation for which her friends vouched, Mrs. Fisher had faith in it.

"I was in a general run down condition," said Mrs. Fisher, "but the principal trouble was nervousness as well as the dull all gone feeling that I suffered with, was the result of a poor stomach and a catarrhal affliction. I lost my appetite and was only able to eat the most plainest fare. Often, it seemed, when I arose in the morning I felt more tired than before I went to bed the night before."

"I tried numerous kinds of remedies but received no apparent relief until my friends urged me to try Tanlac. I noticed a great improvement in my run down condition from the start. My catarrh is much better. My appetite has returned and sleepless nights are a thing of the past with me now."

"I recommend it to others that suffer the way I did because I have found it to be the very best medicine I have ever tried for my ailments."

Catarrh of the stomach and kidneys is the most frequent cause of dyspepsia and Bright's disease, and catarrhal conditions in the nose and throat lead to inevitable

The taunts of the English press about the inactivity of the German fleet seem to have aroused the German editors to set before the people of the Fatherland the work which the Kaiser's battleships have done, and are doing, in the war. # P. H. S. NOSED OUT BY WELLSTON; GAME WAS ROUGH

Absence Of Baesman Costly To Local Five, Fouls Helped Visitors

Just two measly points separated the P. H. S. basketball team from victory Friday evening when the Wellston high school quintet by rough playing, followed up with good team work and accurate passing won from the locals by a score of 20 to 15, the game being one of the best and most hotly contested ever staged in the local gym between high school teams. The crowd was close to the 250 mark and the roots kept cheering for the local lads to make up the three points.

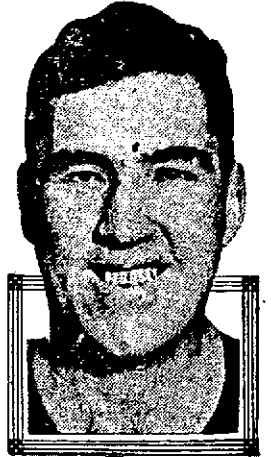

The Wellston team came up to every expectation. The players are husky and go into the game with blood in their eyes. They showed the effects of splendid coaching.

After the first few minutes of play the absence of Baesman from the local lineup could be clearly seen as Trone who filled in at center could not get the jump on his opponent.

Referee Drew watched the plays closely and called a number of fouls in favor of the visitors which seemed to dampen the spirits of the locals. Fouls from fouls called on the locals is what contributed largely to their defeat. Birmingham and V. Pope for the visitors were continually making fouls.

Wagner, the locals' left forward, was away off his stride on the shooting of

DENIAL NOT NECESSARY

Reports that the National Baseball commission will be dissolved are denied vehemently by the managers. The denial was loudly necessary since the need of a general governing body in baseball was never greater than at present.

GOTCH NEEDS MONEY

Efforts to bring Frank Gotch and Joe Steeler together in a bout for the world championship have now reached the stage where the title holder has consented to be interviewed on the proposition.

Reds Buy Rodgers

Bill Rodgers, who wound up the season at second base for the Reds last season, will be back on the job next spring, ready to defend his position against all comers. Final payment for his release has been made to the Portland (Ore.) Club by President Herrmann of the Reds.

25 Players Going South

On Jan. 15, according to the official announcement made here today, no more than 25 players will be taken south on the spring training trip of the Cincinnati baseball club.

Braves Must Play Real Baseball

Discipline is likely to be the watchword of the Boston National League baseball club under the direction of the new president, Percy D. Haughton, during the coming season. Haughton as a Harvard baseball and football player and later coach of the eleven has always been a strong advocate of strict obedience to training rules.

instructions and the playing code of whatever game he was interested in.

While it is not to be expected that Haughton will insist that the players of the Boston Braves will be held to some degree of accountability that prevails in college football circles, it is certain that the new president of the club will insist upon an observance of all the rules recently laid down by former President Gaffney in his letter to the players, and may even go further. With Haughton as president and George Stallings as manager it would appear as though the players of the Boston club will have to make baseball playing strictly a business proposition in 1916 or learn that a regime prevails in the game.

Audit Of Books Is Completed

Friday Evening—Spiders vs Corn Shuckers, alleys 4 and 5.

Showing absolutely no mercy those cruel-hearted Corn Shuckers landed the jolly Submarines three in a row at the Play House alleys, Friday evening, and it now looks as though the brave crew of Admiral Floyd Fuller Boy-Ed would never again see the light of day, they being so deeply submerged that practically every member of the jolly crew has given up all hope of seeing the blue canopy of heaven this season. It may be necessary to get out all the trace chains, jack screws, derricks, etc., in an effort to raise the water-soaked craft.

Even at that the Submarines put up a bold fight and forced the Corn Shuckers to do their level best in order to cop the series. Skipper Earl Reinhard was the huge noise for the Submarines for he put up three good games and most certainly did his part towards wrestling victory from the Shuckers. Admiral Fuller was also a pretty loud noise, while Mate Applegate was there with the bells on. George Wilhelm, was the chief gunner for the Corn Shuckers, averaging well up in the clarned circle. Sponson Shaw was also a host, especially in his first two games. He fell down pretty hard in his third attempt. Captain Scrimmager went home happy, for he made his highest score of the season, 157. ## Hopes Women Will Adopt This Habit As Well As Men

Glass of hot water each morning helps us look and feel clean, sweet, fresh.

Happy, bright, alert—vigorous and vigorous—a good clear skin; a natural, rosy complexion and freedom from illness are assured only by clean, healthy blood. If only every woman and likewise every man could realize the wonders of the morning inside bath, what a gratifying change would take place everywhere.

Instead of the thousands of sickly, anemic-looking men, women and girls with pasty or muddy complexions; instead of the multitudes of "morose wrecks," "rundowns," "brain fags" and pessimists we should see a virile, optimistic throng of rosy, checked people everywhere.

An inside bath is had by drinking, each morning before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of Limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour fermentations and poisons, thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Those subject to sick headache, biliousness, nasty breath, rheumatism, colds, and particularly those who have a pallid, scallor complexion and who are constipated very often, are urged to obtain a quarter pound of Limestone phosphate at the drug store which will cost but a trifle but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance awaiting those who practice internal sanitation. We must remember that inside cleanliness is more important than outside, because the skin does not absorb impurities to contaminate the blood, while the pores in the thirty feet of bowels do.

"GET IN LINE" URGES TRADE BOARD PRESIDENT

RIVER IS SLOW IN STARTING TO FALL

Dues Are Only Five Dollars A Year, Join Now

W. B. Anderson, president of the Board of Trade, addressed the following open letter to the public Saturday afternoon, especially directed to delinquent members and non-members of the Board of Trade:

Persons frequently have said to me during the past year: "No one has ever asked me to become a member of the Board of Trade." In view of this I desire to state that there has been no active solicitation for membership for several years. During this time many business and professional men have become residents here.

The present membership is about 200. There ought to be double that number. The Board of Trade has been, is now and will continue to be an important factor in the development of the city, and because of that it stands for, should have the support of every business and professional man who has the best interests of the city at heart.

Portsmouth is entering upon a period of prosperity which will mean a continued growth and development

W. B. ANDERSON, President.

There was no change perceptible in the Ohio river here as late as 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon, when the marks still showed 49.3 and stationary, the same as at 7 a. m.

Rivermen declare that the Pittsburgh water is what is holding up the river now.

The high water looms up greatly on the piers of the new county bridge, which since the towpath has become submerged it presents a very desolate appearance. Owning to the high prices asked by skiff ferry-men but few West Side came to the city Saturday and the lower end of the city was unusually quiet. The upper ferry-boat's float is anchored far out in the backwater while the boat itself is making lands in front of Hammond's store on Union street.

Portsmouth, 49.3 ft. and rising, rise of 7.

Cincinnati, 53.1 ft. and falling, no change.

No precipitation at any points in valley.

Forecasters Deveraux wired to Capt. H. C. Donally, the local river observer, Saturday morning as follows: "Unsettled weather over upper Ohio valley tonight and Sunday with probably local rain or snow. River will be about stationary tonight and probably begin falling Sunday unless moderately heavy rains should occur."

The stage here at 10 o'clock Saturday morning was 49.3 ft. and stationary. There was a rise of only two tenths of a foot from 7 o'clock Friday evening when the marks showed 49.1 ft. until Saturday morning at 7 o'clock. At the 7 o'clock reading Saturday there was no way of ascertaining just what the river was doing but it is thought to have come to a stand some time during the night, in fact it was stationary for several hours Friday evening and then came up again a couple of tenths.

The water is now over the intersection of Mill and Chillicothe streets and hugging the surface of upper Mill street. Seepage through the Mill street garbage dump has formed a number of small ponds in the vicinity of Front and Waller streets which have since frozen and youngsters are having great sport skating.

MRS. PANKHURST IS HELD AT IMMIGRATION STATION

New York, N. Y., January 15.—Mrs. Emmaline Pankhurst, the British suffrage leader, was held at Ellis Island immigration station today when she arrived here on the steamship St. Paul.

Federal authorities said Mrs. Pankhurst was detained because she had served a sentence in a British prison. She was similarly detained when she arrived here more than two years ago but was quickly released and allowed to enter this country.

Mrs. Pankhurst and her secretary, Miss Jean Wickham, were walking down the St. Paul's gang plank when an immigration officer informed the suffrage leader that she would have to go to Ellis Island. She protested vigorously but the official explained that although she had been allowed to enter in 1913 she was still subject to the federal status barring aliens convicted of "crimes involving moral turpitude."

Mrs. Pankhurst then declared that she had not come here in connection with suffrage, that she would not under any circumstances discuss politics or suffrage while here and that she would not even attend a suffrage meeting.

She added that she came here expressly at the request of Cheddor Miyatovich former Serbian minister of state and foreign affairs, who is now head of the Serbian relief commission.

MRS. WILLIAM DILTZ SHOT BY HUSBAND

The vicinity of Eleventh and Washington streets, was thrown into a fever of excitement by a shooting at the home of William Diltz, a steel worker, of No. 730 Eleventh street, Saturday afternoon.

According to admissions made to The Times by Mrs. Grace Diltz, her husband came home in an intoxicated condition, and when she sought to put him to bed he became enraged and commenced shooting at her. She said two shots went wide their mark, but the third struck her in the left arm, causing a flesh wound. A physician was called to attend her. She said Diltz disappeared before officers could reach the scene and had not yet been apprehended at a late hour.

Surprise Friends With A Wedding

The groom who is 21, is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Judge Bellamy, of Tenth and Chillicothe streets. Miss Virginia Bellamy accompanied the couple.

The Misses Aylesworth rendered several musical selections which were well received by the railroad "boys," who are taking quite an interest in the noon day shop meetings. The Misses Aylesworth rendered several songs in the wheel house of the N. & W. shops Saturday noon before the Y. M. C. A. lobby meeting. Other meetings of a like nature will be held before Rev. Reed leaves the city.

Eva Mae Metz, the San Francisco girl who made startling accusations against Rev. Frank Horn of that city three years ago, causing him to flee the country, has just been married to Edward de St. Maurice, a San Francisco man, at a ceremony in the city.

The woman's charges, to the effect that the preacher had a double life and wore false whiskers, startled the country at the time.

"What's the matter with the waiter?" "I mistook him for a guest, and he didn't like it."

ANCIENT MEALTIMES.

When They Rose at 5, Dined at 9 and Supped at 5.

The change in meal-times is evidenced by the old time:

To rise at five and dine at nine. To sup at five and bed at nine. Will make a man live to ninety-nine.

But one suspected that the change in the names of the meals rather than in the hours. Our ancestors would have termed our luncheon dinner and our dinner supper. It is a curious fact that in some of the Oxford colleges, where the founders made allowances for the meals of the students, a much larger sum is allotted for supper than for dinner, implying that the former was the more substantial meal. Taken at 5 or 6 o'clock, it was really "early dinner."

Some particulars of the meal-times of our ancestors may be found in William Harrison's "Description of England," published in 1587:

"With us the nobility, gentry and students do ordinarily go to dinner at 11 before noon and to supper at 5 or between 5 and 6 at afternoon. The merchants dine and sup seldom before 12 at noon and 6 at night, especially in London. The husbandmen dine also at high noon, as they call it, and sup at 7 or 8, but out of the town to the universities the scholars dine at 10. As for the poorest sort, they generally dine and sup when they may, so that to talk of their order of repast it were but a needless matter."—London Chronicle.

REV. DIBERT TRYING TO SECURE AN EVANGELIST

Rev. Dibert, superintendent of the Wesley Hall Mission, is going to make an effort to have Harry Munroe come to Portsmouth and conduct a series of revival meetings in the interest of the mission. Mr. Munroe is at the head of the Pacific Garden mission in Chicago, the place where Billy Sunday was converted and of which he had charge prior to going into evangelistic field. Munroe is a fine singer of the revival class of vocalism, and was in Portsmouth as the advance man of Mr. Sunday. He is a man who hit the high places in his youth and has been down the line. Failing to get Mr. Munroe, Mr. Dibert will make an effort to secure Mel Trotter, another famous evangelist in the mission field.

Local German's View Of European War

(Written by Louis F. Korth, former Editor of The Correspondent.)

Friday, January 14, 1915.

The debacle complete! After the German expeditionary force had to give up the south point, its last positions at Sedd-ul-Bahr and Helles Burn. One has been as much of a hell to them as the other and more than ever London has reason for a sigh of relief and a "Thank heaven they are out of there."

General Munro, the British commander, reports it was safely done with the loss of only seven old guns and one man. The Turks speak of heavy losses to the British in their retreat by their artillery, of the slaughter of the rear guard which covered it and of the capture of immense stores.

The Allies accomplished their entrapment in three days under cover of their ships despite the heavy fire of the Turkish batteries, but they were caught on their weather calculation, as on the last day a storm came up, which impeded their work. This makes the claim of the Turks plausible enough.

Be this as it may it is not the man and the mule which the Allies bewailed at Sedd-ul-Bahr but the loss of prestige, the sacrifice of hundreds of thousands of lives and millions of treasure during the long siege and the dismal failure of a campaign, which was to give them Constantinople with the Dardanelles and end the war, as Sir William Churchill, now a brigadier in Flanders, boasted in parliament last spring.

The Allies have released a considerable force by leaving the peninsula but so have the Turks. Both will meet in another field, probably at Saloniki where the Germans, Austrians and Turks are reported to be moving upon the Allies positions in three directions from Monastir, Ghevgeli and Dorina and the French have blown up the bridges on the Struma to hinder it. As Greece has withdrawn her troops out of this territory it is presumed that she will not interfere, but stand by and look on. What else is left to her?

Montenegro is almost entirely in the hands of the Austrians. General Kučević has broken the enemy's east front at Berane and driven the Czernogorians from the Lim, which has opened the way to the interior for him. In the west the Austrians have swept the country from the Bosnian border to the coast and the Bay of Cattaro. With the support of their fleet in the bay and of the Cattaro forts they stormed Mount Lovcen, which rises 3,700 feet above the sea and dominates bay and harbor. On account of its steep ascent and strong fortifications it has been considered impregnable.

Cattaro is Austria's main naval base on the Adriatic Sea and has always been endangered from Mt. Lovcen.

Cettinje, the old capital of Montenegro, lies only seven miles from Cattaro and is said to be in the hands of the Austrians. The only strong place left to the Montenegrins is Scutari, now King Nikita's headquarters, upon which two armies are moving. With its capture Montenegro will be shut off from the sea and supplies. If it does not surrender it will starve. King Nikita, who is now at Scutari, has asked for a truce, it is reported.

With Montenegro Albania will fall, which will be a heavy blow to Italy and end its dream of supremacy in the Adriatic that led it into the luckless war.

To support their new offensive in Eastern Galicia and on the Bessarabia-Bukovina frontier the Russians made a strong demonstration against Lubingen in the Stry and Pripet country under the impression perhaps that he had weakened himself by reinforcing Bothmer. The topography in that Volhynian swamp section gave them no other chance for attack than within the narrow circle which the Stry describes from Czastorisk to Ravelovska, between which the big Kovel-Sarny railroad bridge, one of the objects of the fighting, is located. To the north and south it is bounded by the Pripet swamps.

Their main attack was at the Czastorisk bridgehead where they forced the Austrian positions to the west up to the village cemetery. There a desperate and bloody hand to hand combat ended with Austrian victory. The Russians were driven back across the river. Large forces with several hundred guns were engaged and the losses on both sides were appalling.

It is here where the Russians tried to break the German-Austrian front and divide their armies. Their defeat occurred simultaneously with the one further south at the Torporitz bridgehead on the Hienken river road to Czernovitz related last week.

As predicted by Petrograd the attack on Pilsners positions north of Czernovitz were renewed on Tuesday last and for two days the fighting was murderous. Six attempts were made by the Russians to break the Hungarian lines, the last one (on Wednesday night) in close formation and deep lines, but in vain. Vienna says: "With excellent artillery support our brave heroes threw the attackers back at all points and followed them up, their retreat finally breaking into a general rout. Their losses were heavy."

How ferocious the fighting has been on Pruth, Dulester, Stripa and Stry the last three weeks may be judged from a Kiev report to Petersburg (Russian) which says that the roar of cannon for days could be heard 36 miles away. On the Tarnopol-Trembovka front, north of Czernovitz, where the Czar inspected the Russian troops in person and delivered a stirring address to them, 800,000 men with 3,500 guns were facing each other. It was one of the biggest battles of the war.

Vienna estimates the number of Russians left on the field at 50,000. It says that the Russian troops are now well supplied with Japanese munition.

The Hungarian fighters on the Bessarabian frontier are all Honveds, married men of the reserve and landsturm. Pilsner-Baitin organized them from home guards at the time of the Russian invasion a year ago for the defense of their own soil and they have done it well. Pilsner stands under the command of Arch Duke Joseph Ferdinand, who conducts the general operations.

On the Duena (Hindenburg's) front southeast of Illusk a Russian attack broke down under the German fire. It was a Russian feeler for a weak point.

General Townsend's British army at Kut-el-Mara in Mesopotamia has been entirely surrounded by the Turks. London admits that General Alymer, who is to bring relief to Townsend and has advanced to within twenty miles of him, is held in check by superior Turkish forces.

A bombardment of Nancy on the Meuse-Moselle line of the French front shows that the Germans have the range now from either Metz or Pont-a-Mousson, the crown prince's headquarters. The town had to be cleared of its civilian population. At Nancy is the weak link in the Toul-Verdun chain of detached forts and a German attack most feasible.

The Germans have been active since New Year in Upper Alsace and the Champagne country again to correct their front for eventualities. After making themselves safe on the Weilerkopf they stormed the French trenches on the Hirsstein south of it on Sunday last, capturing 1,085 prisoners with all their officers and 15 machine guns, as admitted by the French war office, who excused it with the loss of a dominating height to the north.

The next day the Germans regained the positions northwest of Massiges in the Champagne which were taken from them in the September battle. A French counter attack was repulsed, also an attack on Les Menil.

The most important of these successes are those in Alsace. With the Hartmann-Weilerkopf and the Hirsstein the French held the eastern slopes of the Vosges into the Rhine valley in full view of the German defenses up to the Thur river and the Vauban Rhine-Rhone canal with the tactical advantage of pressure against them. Between Sennheim and Gebweiler it would have been impossible to hold the French out of range if they held the Kopf and the Stein. This explains the many bloody struggles for their possession.

In the Champagne the Germans have again secured the safety of their Challevange-Vonzey supply road just behind their front which was endangered by French successes in September.

Neither Monte San Michele nor Gorizia has fallen so far although Rome has told us every day: Tomorrow. Yet fighting on the Isonzo, now reduced to heavy artillery duels, is going on uninterruptedly. So far the Italians have not advanced a step in the past ten months beyond the territory which the Austrians voluntarily evacuated to get the Alpini and Bersaglieri to the granit rocks which even up for numbers.

The big British battleship Edward VII. has been sunk, following the Natal, the London admiralty announces without giving particulars.

In a naval engagement in the Black Sea the Turkish cruiser Sultan Selim, formerly the Goeben which has been demolished half a dozen times by the Russians—on paper—crippled their battleship Maria.

The Allies have taken possession of the Grecian islands Corfu and Milos in the Aegean Sea for naval purposes without even making a request for them, which has greatly aroused the Greeks. Milos has a roomy harbor, Plaka, which is to be used as a Franco-British naval rendezvous and army depot. On the island of Corfu, where the German emperor's classic Achilleion with fine works of Grecian art, is located, the remnants of the Serbian army are to be reorganized.

The Overseas News Agency learns from Italian sources that in the city of Tunis, capital of the new French colony in Northern Africa, the ancient Carthage, riots have broken out against recruiting. One recruiting officer was killed.

At Asabad, Persia, encounters have taken place between natives and Russians. Asabad is east of Humadan, where the Russians were attacked by Kurds last week.

The Turks have entered Kermanshah, the capital of the new Persian Sultan, who threw off the Russian yoke.

The war correspondent of the Chicago Tribune, Weygand, who since the war began has been alternating between the different armies and counts as a neutral observer, has interviewed the German general staff about the truth of a statement that the German army on killed alone has lost 500,000. Up to November not 500,000 was the reply. Mr. Weygand, who is home on a furlough, says: "Germany was sitting tight when I left."

The East Asiatic Lloyd (German) interviewed Baron Kato, the Japanese ex-secretary of foreign affairs, after the torpedoing of the liner Yasaku in the Mediterranean. Kato declared that Japan would send no troops to Europe, it had neither the interest in the war, nor the money, to do that. By supplying Russia with arms and munitions it had done all that could reasonably be expected.

It has often been asserted that King Constantine of Greece was influenced politically by the queen who is a sister of the German emperor. To a question regarding his attitude in this respect he replied to a correspondent: "I am bound by no personal interest. Sentiment plays no part in politics. My only duty is to look after the interests of my people."

According to the Overseas News Agency Yehki Pasha, the Turkish statesman, has stated in Berlin, now that Turkey can be supplied with the necessary armaments, her immense reserves, which could not be called out for the want of them, will be put into the field as quick as possible.

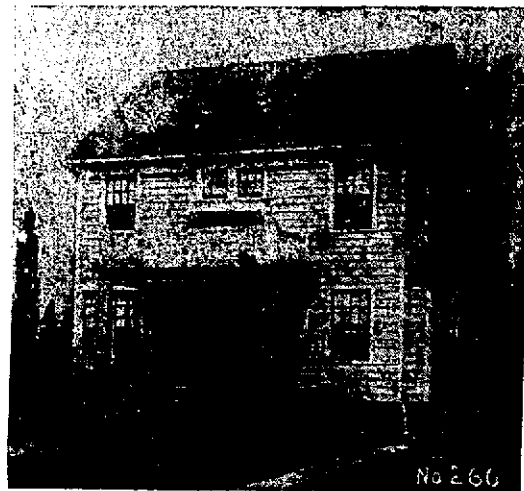

Count Julius Andrássy, the Hungarian statesman, concurs in the opinion of the German military leaders that the Allies are preparing for a general grand offensive on all fronts in the spring, but does not fear it as the Central Powers have the advantage of the inner lines and can concentrate their troops wherever needed or wanted. He thinks the war will last until the Allies are ready to accept peace.

A high French officer, who superintends the shipping of munitions for the French army in New York, says that the munition factories in the United States are now turning out 200,000 explosives a day to be used in the big day offensive on the west front, in which doubly as much artillery is to be used than in the last September battle.

In striking the balance in regard to the war up to date the German consul in Cincinnati meets his opponents in their claim that Germany because of its exclusion from the sea has lost more than it has gained with the following argument:

"At the outbreak of the war the English Allies aimed at the entire overthrow of Germany, destruction of the German fleet, dismemberment of the two empires Germany and Austria-Hungary, return of Alsace-Lorraine to France, the conquest of Con-

A Small Colonial Design

"Home of Character"
No. 266
28x28 ft., By

John Henry Newson

The photograph from which this cut was made does not do this house justice. It is a very attractive house, with wide siding, painted light yellow, with white trim and black slate roof.

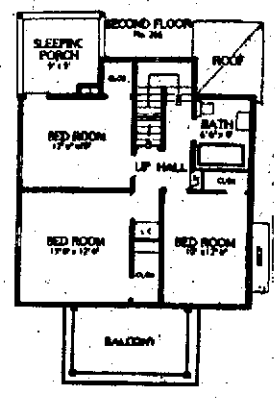

The plan is unique and at the same time convenient and practical. The front porch floor is of cement, colored red, and laid off in squares to imitate tile.

There is a small coat closet off of vestibule and a large closet and sun porch at rear of living room. Both doors to porch and closet are French doors with glass panels, and combined with brick fireplace make a very attractive end to living-room. The two center windows in this room are 4 feet from floor to provide furniture space underneath. The French door, full length window next to it and three casement windows in alcove, combined with these two high windows, make this a particularly light and attractive room. The dining-room is well lighted and has bay for buffet. The stairway is inclosed and so arranged that no rear stairs are necessary. The stairway to basement leads from ice room and grade entry. The kitchen is well arranged with excellent cupboards, broom closet and clothes chute.

There are three large bedrooms on second floor; also two linen closets and tiled bathroom. A large bedroom and attic occupy the third floor. The sleeping porch is inclosed in glass and screens.

The vestibule is finished in white enamel, living room in mahogany, dining room in fumed oak with wainscot, service porch in white enamel on birch, and second floor in white enamel doors. The third floor is in yellow pine. Floors are oak, waxed, and house is heated by a vacuum steam system.

Cost was $4000.00, which could be considerably reduced by using cheaper equipment. Price of plans $17.50. Specifications $2.50. Shown subject to approval upon request. When you want more information concerning these plans and houses, address "John Henry Newson, Homes of Character Dept., The Times."

REPLETE with action and sensational climaxes that real lovers of the movies thrive on the first installment of "The Girl and the Game," at the Columbia Thursday evening was enjoyed by audiences that taxed the capacity of this popular and comfortable theater. Evidence is already at hand to warrant the statement that "The Girl and the Game," a story of mountain railroad life is going to prove the most popular and interesting movie serial yet shown in Portsmouth. ## The Movies

Victor Moore in "Chimmie Fadden Out West," Paramount Feature at Lyric Tuesday.

So great was the success of Victor Moore in the Jesse L. Lasky production of "Chimmie Fadden Out West," that the company secured Mr. Moore's services for a long term of years for a series of stories founded on the adventures of the same character.

Mr. Cecil B. DeMille, the director general of the Lasky company, has felt for some time that the public would appreciate high class comedy on the screen; that as many laughs could be secured in this kind of comedy as could be obtained by the slapstick methods. With this aim in view, he produced the first "Chimmie Fadden" picture.

The first of the series of "Chimmie Fadden" stories in which Mr. Moore is to appear, is entitled "Chimmie Fadden Out West" and shows the brawny boy hero in the wilds of Death Valley finding a gold mine and returning east, supposedly a millionaire.

The same cast which supported Mr. Moore in the first "Chimmie Fadden" story, will be retained for the series and includes: such prominent artists as Camille Astor, Raymond Hatton, Mrs. Lewis McCord, Tom Forman, Anita King, Ernest Joy and Florence Dagmar.

"Salvation Nell" at Lyric on Wednesday.

Edward Sheldon who wrote the serial in its appeal. Salvationism play upon which this film is based, probably read Walter Besant's "All Sorts and Conditions of Men." The scene of this book was laid in the East End of London just about the time when the Salvation Army was founded by the late William Booth, 40 years ago.

In Sheldon's play and in the California film version which is to be released by World Film corporation, you can just as well locate the action in London, Paris, Bombay, Tokio, Pekin, Manchester, Liverpool or Chicago as in New York. The theme is universal.

Beatriz Michelena has the most dramatic part of her motion picture career in that of Nell and there is a strong supporting cast. "Salvation Nell" will be presented at the Lyric theater on Wednesday.

A new company to produce five reel Mutual Masterpieces, Edition De Luxe, has been organized by the Signal Film corporation. The company is enlarging its forces to enable it to become a regular contributor to the Mutual Film corporation's new feature policy.

Striking scenes of natural grandeur are embodied in the newest of American "Clippers" releases, "The Smugglers of Santa Cruz," which is to be released January 28th. William Russell and Charlotte Burton, who achieved immeasurable screen popularity in "The Diamond From the Sky," meet the leading roles.

Mr. Carrigan is the husband of Mabel Talbot, who will also appear in Metro pictures.

MICE AND MEN IS PICTURIZED

What Marguerite Clark lacks in stature she more than makes up for in humor and ability. The little Famous Players star has given many inimitable characterizations to the motion picture screen since her desertion of the stage, among the more recent of which are Nestor in "Still Waters," and the dual title roles of the adaptation of Mark Twain's masterpiece, "The Prisoner and the Padlock," in which she proved that she could be a sturdy little boy when the occasion demanded, as well as the most exquisitely delightful little girls of all ages for the characterization of which she has become famous.

Now Miss Clark has added to her accomplishments the role of Peggy in the adaptation of Maudeleine Luerette Ryley's celebrated play, "Mice and Men."

"When Uncle Sam Makes His Laws and Keeps His Rules" is the title of the first episode of "Uncle Sam At Work," a big serial which will soon start at the Strand theatre. One reel will be shown each week. The first are educational pictures taken at Washington, D. C., where there is a broad field for instructive and interesting views. The first reel takes up the Smithsonian Institute in detail and also gives some general views of department buildings.

QUICK WORK BY MUTUAL WEEKLY

Within twenty-four hours after the ship was sighted off New York harbor, the Mutual Weekly was showing in New York theaters views of the Ford Peace Ship which had been brought back from Kirkwall, Eng. This was extremely quick work, since all films brought from Europe must suffer an inevitable delay going through the custom house.

GETS THE MONEY

David Warfield, who unfolded his new play in Cincinnati this week says he will not be "screamed" until he is no longer able to appear on the stage in person. He is said to be the highest salaried actor in America.

WRITES SCENARIO

Miss Gertrude Robinson, who is now being filmed in the Gaumont Mutual Masterpiece, edition de luxe, "As a Woman Sings," is also a scenario writer. From her pen came the photo-play, "Trapping Santa Claus," produced by D. W. Griffith.

FIGHTING FOR FAME

Gen. Joffre, the idol of France; King Albert of Belgium, the stalwart, ever smiling ruler temporarily without a kingdom; King George of England; Nicholas, the bearded ruler of Russia, and scores of others whose names will figure prominently when the time comes for the writing of the history of the great conflict now raging in Europe, play a big part in "Fighting For France," the new special feature in five reels to be released soon by the Mutual Film corporation.

FAMOUS PAIR IN NEW PLAY

Harold Lockwood and May Allison, among screen's most idolized co-stars, are soon to appear together in a remarkable two reel American "Flying A" subject entitled "The Man in the Sombra." This piece was specially written for Miss Allison and Lockwood and is one of the limited number of two reel pictures in which the famous couple are to appear. Thomas Ricketts, the dean of moving picture producers in America, directed "The Man in the Sombra."

WONDERFUL PICTURE

It is claimed that "The Birth of a Nation," while shown in New York was witnessed by over 600,000 people. And the prices were from 25 cents to $2. It is said to be a wonderful picture.

WILL PRODUCE CAPTAIN JINKS

The sensational serial "The Red Circle" will be shown at the Lyric on every Wednesday beginning Jan. 26th. "Nevermore" the first of the 14 episode serial which the serial is divided gives just a look in at the starting point of the story or what might be termed its inspiration.

Ruth Roland, the heroine of "Who Pays" is the star of the serial. She is supported by Frank Mayo.

"Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines," Clyde Fitch's brilliant satire of the politics and the frivolities of the 70s, has been brought into film form by Essanay, with Ann Munro, the "baby star" of the Charles Froman company and Richard C. Travers in the leads.

Fitch, it is believed, would have been the equal of George Bernard Shaw had he lived until his gifts had developed to their full. He was cut just as his influence was beginning to be felt in the American drama.

Julius Steger, newest of Metro stars, began his professional career as a grand opera singer in Vienna.

T. J. CARRIGAN BACK ON SCREEN

After a considerable absence from the screen, Thomas J. Carrigan, who will be remembered for his work with Selig and as playing leads with May Buckley when she was with the Selig company, will be seen in Metro pictures. He will make his first appearance on the Metro program with Mary Miles Minter in "Rose of the Alky."

Mr. Carrigan is the husband of Mabel Talbot, who will also appear in Metro pictures.

Famous Actress Coming to Lyric Thursday.

Working out the salvation of stage in the first production of her happiness and her home after an experience which would have wrecked a weaker woman, Kathryn Osterman, the star of "The Bluebeard," which is the next of the Equitable's five-part feature photoplays to be released at the Lyric theater, on Thursday, has produced on the screen an effect fully equal to that made on the stage.

The story deals with the effects of a n attempt by the wife of a struggling chemist to live beyond the means her husband can provide, and an effort to break into society when he gets a little fortune through the sale of a formula. Tragedy, retribution and final happiness follow.

"The Jungle Lovers," at the Exhibit Tonight.

The cast includes Bessie Epton, Edward J. Peil, Richard Morris, Tom Bates, Edwin Wallock, Cash Darrell.

Van Cleeve, an eccentric scientist, goes into the jungle in order to perfect an explosive. Peter Rand and his little family living in the jungle, are visited by Herman Blans and his little son, Jan. Naida Rand and little Jan wander away from the cabin into the jungle. The Rands cabin is attacked and razed by Zulus while the two children cower in the jungle growth, and horror strikes as see their parents slain. Van Cleeve later finds Naida and Jan and takes them under his care.

Exciting events follow during a lapse of some fifteen years. The climax is unusually exciting.

Wamba, the native chief, and Starling, with clubbed rifles, engage in a combat at the edge of a precipice where Starling falls to his death. Van Cleeve is then rescued by Jan and Naida from the cave. Later Naida and Jan observe their wedding day with Van Cleeve and the natives as witnesses.

"Save the Coupons," is a Vitagraph comedy that carries the laugh. Don't fail to see "Neal of the Navy," Monday.

"Heart of a Tigress," at the Arcana Tonight.

"The Heart of a Tigress" is a three reel animal drama featuring Mlle. Paul Bourgeois, Paul Bourgeois and Betty Schade. It is replete with thrilling situations and adventures innumerable in wild animal sensational features. The story deals with the adventures of an American lady in South Africa trapping specimens for her zoo in California. A South African has fallen in love with her and follows her to America trying to persuade her to marry him. He is jealous of an American hunter who boards the same boat at Singapore and taking him at a disadvantage he succeeds in binding the American in a chair on the deserted deck and releases the lions from the hold of the ship.

"Man in Skirts," is a very funny picture offered as the comedy attraction. "Graft" is the big feature next Wednesday.

The GIRL and the GAME

A Story of Mountain Railroad Life
By FRANK H. SPEARMAN

AUTHOR OF "WHISPERING SMITH," "THE MOUNTAIN DIVIDE," "STRATEGY OF GREAT RAILROADS," ETC.

NOVELIZED FROM THE MOVING PICTURE PLAY OF THE SAME NAME. PRODUCED BY THE SIGNAL FILM CORPORATION. COPYRIGHT, 1915, BY FRANK H. SPEARMAN.

SYNOPSIS.

Little Helen Holmes, daughter of General Holmes, railroad man, is rescued from imminent danger on a scenic railroad, by George Storm, a cowboy. Storm, a young manhood Helen makes a spectacular double rescue of Storm, now a freight train, and of her father and his friends, Amos Rhineland, financier, and Robert Seagrue, promoter, from a threatened collision between a passenger train and a runaway freight.

CHAPTER II.

A fight among the directors—and a bitter fight—had been indicated from the moment the allotment of the stock issue of the new Copper Range and Tidewater cut-off line was discussed. It was not alone that the territory of the proposed cut-off was rich in traffic. The survey made by Holmes' engineers through a wild country, hitherto reputed inaccessible, had developed a low-grade pass through the Superstition mountains that would put the Tidewater's active rival—the Colorado and Coast line—with its heavy grades and curves, at a serious, if not irretrievable, disadvantage. In its fight for competitive traffic.

General Holmes, seated in the library of his country home with his associate, Amos Rhineland, took from his morning mail a letter from John U. Rhodes, chairman of his executive committee, which revealed the extent of the feeling over the situation. Holmes handed the letter to Rhineland. Rhodes had discovered that their competitors already had a surveying party out on reconnaissance, endeavoring to locate the Tidewater pass; having in view the reputation for sharp practice of the Colorado line backers, he urged Holmes to keep a close watch on the original survey, not in the general's possession, until the right of way should be definitely secured. He added that with his party of the directors, he would arrive on a special at noon for the informal board meeting at which means for financing the project were to be arranged.

Through a complication in financial arrangements, Holmes had been obliged to put on his own, the Tidewater line board, a minority group of directors led by Rhineland's nephew, Seagrue and Seagrue's attorney, Capelle—Seagrue was owner of a substantial interest in the Colorado and Coast line itself. Indeed, his means were all tied up in it. It was this complication which caused uneasiness in Holmes' mind and called for prudence—not all those even of his own directorate could be trusted, in the circumstances, not to conspire against his interest.

Seagrue had already been for the week-end the house guest of Holmes. He was at that moment seated in the garden with Helen—Holmes' daughter—and Helen was being alternately amused and bored by the patiently forced efforts of the easterner to interest her in himself and his affairs. More than once during his stay she had refused to listen seriously to him and now to annoy him, she protested to wonder, as the blast of a freight engine whistle sounded at the moment through the hills, whether that might not be George Storm, one of her father's many engineers—a man to whom she had lately rendered a great and grateful service and about whom Seagrue himself had once tried to trick her. And it so chanced that it really was young Storm's train running by them for the passing track. He had orders to wait there for the directors' special.

Toward noon, Holmes and his guests, together with Helen, started for the station to meet the train. Its arrival was the occasion of many greetings for Helen from old New York friends who declared that the mountain sun and air had wrought wonders for the once delicate girl.

It was while she stood thus on the platform surrounded by her newly arrived guests that a young engineerman crossed the platform, cap in hand. After a slight hesitation he walked up to her as if he would speak. Again, as if undecided, he halted just before Helen. She noticed the rather grimy appearance of the stalwart engineerman, obviously just from his cab, but did not look closely enough to recognize him. If he was pausing, as she stood, for courage, it rose in him, for as her eyes returned to him, he stepped nearer to her. "I think it was you who saved my life the other day," he said somewhat haltingly. Then he questioningly held out his hand. "Will you accept my thanks?"

The moment he spoke, Helen knew him—it was Storm, the fireman of the freight wreck. Indeed, she remembered him almost too well. Her face flushed with embarrassment. Her guests, without catching what he had said, were critically inspecting the awkward engineer. Something like a wave of resentment swept over Helen. Why should he choose this, of all moments, to speak to her? She was quite innocent of false pride; but her friends could not possibly understand the situation and Storm with real western impulsiveness had chosen, it seemed, the most inopportune time possible to express his gratitude.

But there was his outstretched hand—should she ignore it? Anger awayed her—yet something within her, and something in Storm's eyes and his manner, pleaded against cutting him dead. With furiously red cheeks but sweeping aside the coat, Helen put out her hand. "It was nothing," she said quickly. "Do not think of it." Then she repaid Storm's impulsive stupidity, as she thought it deserved, by catching at something Seagrue was saying and failing to see Storm again.

The engineer had come up prepared to say how grateful he was; he found himself to a fleeting second, already well launched on the social loggion and shouting toward the bottom of a long hill. Seagrue, almost before Storm's back was turned, was laughing at Helen and pointing to her glove. The white, soft kid now here beyond repair the heavy, black fingerprints of the engineer's hand.

Questions and banterings from her companions contributed nothing toward restoring Helen's composure. But as the group moved to the waiting motor cars, she unconsciously drew the offending glove over her wrist and threw it away. One pair of eyes watched the action closely; Storm, collecting his wits after his social disaster, noted what she had done. He was too philosophical to resent it. Instead, crossing the platform, when the party had driven away, he picked up the discarded glove and put it in his pocket.

Nor did he, in his turn, escape unseen. As one of the cars whirled around a nearby corner Helen, looking back at the scene of her annoyance, saw Storm picking up something white; she knew it was her glove.

On reaching home—where the ladies were taken to their various rooms and the men went to their business—Helen, from her own room overlooking the passing track, watched the freight, bearing Storm, draw out and stop before the station for orders.

Turning to her glass more than once to see whether her cheeks were still as flushed as they felt, she was gratified to find that traces of her humiliation had disappeared. Her mind, from which she had tried to dislodge the whole incident, was now assailed by a rebellious curiosity concerning what she had seen happen on the distant platform when Storm crossed it to pick up her glove. As his frank eyes returned again and again to her imagination, something seemed to call her strongly, back to where he still was detained. She resisted longer; then surrendering to a sudden impulse, she ran downstairs, while her guests were disposing themselves, stepped into her racing car, drove to the station and alighting just as Storm came out of the telegraph office, she herself began to search at the edge of the platform for something. The engineer, after an interval, deliberately joined her.

"You have lost something."

Helen glanced up with affected surprise. "Nothing of moment. I missed a ring when I got home," she fabricated lightly, "and one of my gloves. I thought I might have dropped the one with the other here."

Storm's hand moved toward his blouse, then regaining his composure, he withdrew his hand, empty, and affected to search along the roadway with her. It was a brief duel of wits, but one in which the railroad man was no longer at a disadvantage. He was quite willing to search as long as she would linger and Helen, more than a little interested, was capricious and did linger until Storm's slow sentences began once more to bear too directly on the episode of the wreck and his gratefulness; then with a hasty good-bye she started for home and Storm, climbing into his engine, pulled out with his long train.

General Holmes, in the meantime, with his two jealous groups of directors, was striving in his drawing room to arrive with them at a mutually satisfactory settlement of the proposed stock issue, in reserving 50,000 shares of this for himself and his friends. Holmes had allotted 20,000 to Seagrue and his Wall Street associates. This both Seagrue and Capelle had promptly refused to accept, since the proposed line would work havoc with the through and local traffic of the Colorado and Coast road. Seagrue demanded instead an equal distribution of the new stock. Holmes and Rhineland, after a long conference, put the motion finally to the eleven directors. Seven of them supported President Holmes' proposal.

Seagrue, white with anger, rose. "Cancel our allotment, then. We will fight."

"That's no way to talk," protested Rhineland. "We will fight," echoed Capelle, equally wrought up. "Seagrue is right. If we are to be treated in this way we'll parallel your tracks!" Rhineland, Holmes and their associates tried in vain to pacify the two; their efforts were useless. Hard words passed and more threats were uttered; the meeting broke up in disorder.

Seagrue and Capelle retired to an adjoining room. Helen passed before them down the hall. Capelle glanced at her and looked toward Seagrue. His face stretched into one of his hollow grins.

"Bad business for you, Seagrue," he said to his companion. "If you can't unload your Colorado and Coast holdings, this thing will put you pretty near out of the game."

"Unload," snorted Seagrue, wrathfully. "When that cut-off is announced Colorado stock won't sell for waste paper."

Helen repressed the hall. Capelle nodded toward her. "There's your best bet, Seagrue. Holmes would give his son-in-law anything."

Seagrue looked grim. He hinted he had already tried that out, and fruitlessly, but spurred by his friend's suggestion, he determined on a further effort. After luncheon he attempted to reach his address.

But there seemed about the self-willed girl a certain barrier of independence, which, try as he would, he could never penetrate. "What's the matter, Helen?" he demanded at last. "You seem to take everything I say as a joke."

She repressed a little bubble of laughter. "That's the spirit it's meant in, isn't it?"

He was too irritated to be patient. Toward evening he assayed to be as serious again; again she lightly evaded his advances.

Late in the day, when walking past the doors of the library, he saw Holmes, finishing a conference with Rhineland, once more roll up an important document and place it within his safe, set inside the library wall. Seagrue knew too well what it was—the survey of the cut-off, the building of which, by crippling him financially, was likely to wreck his hopes of a career.

It was in this sullen mood that Capelle, a few moments later, encountered him. They had been partners in more than one unscrupulous enterprise and had learned to set value on audacity. A guarded discussion followed. Seagrue moodily rejected one after another of the suggestions of the resourceful Capelle, until one starcompanion, Hyde, to connect up the drills; his orders from Capelle were to open the safe.

Upstairs, Helen, in slumber, was half-awakened by a whistle signal. Storm was bringing a freight train down the hill to wait for the midnight flyer. The rumble of passing trains rarely disturbed her. This night a much lighter but an unusual sound woke her completely. She sat up at a moment, listening. It seemed close—someone was in the house. Turning on a light and dressing hastily, Helen opened the hall door of her room.

She had been careful not to make the slightest noise in her movements. Unfortunately the light behind her silhouetted her figure on the floor at the foot of the broad flight of stairs. Spike, keen-eyed, in the library, saw it. He touched Hyde. "Don't stir!" he muttered. Hyde extinguished the light. The two paused, listened, walked into the hall and paused again. Then they started noiselessly up the stairs.

Guarded as they had been, Helen felt their presence. With fast-beating heart she ran to her window. Out in the night she could see the light of a torch. It was Storm's light, carried as he worked around his engine. Catching up a small serving bell she ran out on her balcony and trying the bell to the telephone wire that connected with the main line wires, she started the jingling messenger off for help.

The engineerman, busy with his work, presently heard the slight jingle, but only to wonder for a moment what it could be. The two criminals had entered Helen's room. The instant she stepped in from the balcony they caught and overpowered her—sifted her screams, and in spite of her continuing struggles, rudely gagged her.

The bell again attracted Storm's attention, and he was puzzled to determine what it might mean. Looking toward Helen's home he saw a bright light in one of the upper windows. Then, of a sudden, he saw more—all bottled against the pane, a woman and a man were struggling. He alarmed the crew and ran swiftly up the hill for General Holmes' house.

In the interval, leaving Helen helpless, the safe-blowers descended the stairs. Holmes and Rhineland had likewise been awakened by the muffled sounds of the struggle and the two appeared in the upper hall. Seagrue joined them and with his uncle hurried into Helen's room, where she was trying to release herself. But her father, turning downstairs, had interrupted the two safe-blowers at the very library door. The old soldier was no match for the two men, but he tackled them together. He had him reached the whole story. When the two reached the siding Storm asked the conductor to put out a flagman to protect the freight; he half lifted and half pushed Helen up into the cab, and the instant the fireman cut off the engine, started in pursuit of the fast-recording passenger train.

But the stern chase is the long chase. The freight engineer had set himself a difficult task; one thing alone was in his favor, everything else was against him. He was running a light engine against one pulling a strong string of sleeping cars. But his own machine was built for traction, not for speed, and he was pitting it against one of the fastest types of engines on the division. From the time Storm opened the throttle not a device was left untried to make his ponderous engine go fast; not a trick of all those that had already made his reputation as an exceptional runner was now overlooked and every resource of the engineer's art was brought into play to overhaul the flying passenger train.

Helen crouched on the fireman's box with her eyes straining ahead into the darkness, or glancing across the hooded lights of the cab at the profile of the silent engineer, waited in vain for him to look toward her. It seemed as if he had forgotten her existence. His attention, for the moment, was centered on nothing but the terrific headway he had attained and must maintain to win, and his reeling, thundering machine seemed awake to the relentless energy of its driver, was responding like a thing alive to his iron will. A cry from Storm made her look across toward him. She saw his eyes regarding her, but he was pointing silently ahead, and looking again through her own window, Helen's straining vision caught far ahead the faint gleam of the red tail-lights.

From the top of the distant sleeping cars Spike and Hyde had seen the threatening chase. Without a quiver, and crawling along the awaying cars, they made their way toward the engine. They held up the engineer and fireman. Spike understood enough of an engine to take the throttle and he tried to run away from Storm; but this proved a game in which he had no advantage. Striving desperately to increase his speed he found himself, as he glanced back from the cab window, steadily losing ground. The race was now more like the effort of a plow horse to run away from a thoroughbred. A last resort remained for the criminals. Hyde, at Spike's direction, climbed back over the tender and cut off the coaches. The engine pulled away from the train. The air went on and the string of sleepers stopped abruptly. Close behind them the freight engine was pounding and lurching. Storm had barely time to apply his air and pull up as he stopped and he was nearly into the hind-end of the observation car.

When the passenger crew got outside there were hurried explanations. Storm, knowing every foot of the line, saw that they had reached the longest passing track on the division and that by running around the stalled train he still had a chance to overtake his quarry. Throwing his engine into reverse he backed down, took the passing-track switch and tore past the standing cars after the fast disappearing passenger train. With all of its lights extinguished, and still maintaining terrific speed, it was at a hopeless disadvantage against the skill of the man at the throttle of the engine behind.

Overhauled and with defeat in sight as the nose of the huge freight engine crowded them, Hyde from the gangway and Spike, turning from the engine, started back to the passenger train. The freight engine sounded a greeting to the crew of the stranded flyer, and Storm and Helen clattered past to their own deserted train. With Storm speeding up at his throttle Helen soon saw the semaphore of Signal station and with the two prisoners, Storm and his fireman returned with Helen to the house.

Police officers were already in charge and the safe-blowers were turned over to them. Helen, agitated and anxious, was met at the door of the library by Amos Rhineland. His face was grave. With a keen, questioning look her father's friend held his hand tenderly on her arm as she attempted to enter the room. "Stop. Don't go in there just now."

Storm stood near. She would have pushed past Rhineland, but again he opposed her entrance. "And where is father?" she exclaimed as if a sudden realization had come upon her. "My child," Rhineland took her within his arm, "we are under the orders of the police. Nothing in the library must be disturbed."

An awful suspicion gripped her heart. "Father," she exclaimed intensely. "He was hurt. Where is he?"

Rhineland, avoiding her glance directed into the half-darkened room, motioned significantly to Storm. The engineer understood; but it was too late. Slipping with the strength and speed of a fawn from between the two men, Helen darted into the library. Those of the forced household band in the night an agonizing cry; it rang far. She had found her father all too soon and had thrown herself beside his dead body, where it had been placed on the couch beside the fireplace.

The officers coming out of the library, marched their prisoners away.

It was Capelle's fault. Accidents will happen—sometimes fatal ones. The game might still be his.

EARLY BUYING IS ONLY ASSURANCE OF PROMPT DELIVERY

Mr. Prospective Automobile Buyer, when are you going to put in your order for your 1916 car?

Are you going to wait until the balmy spring breezes blow in March or April before giving thought to your purchase?

Or are you going to be numbered among those wise buyers who know that the surest way to have an automobile, and the particular one they want, for early spring is to order the car for immediate delivery now or within the next few weeks.

One of the curses of the automobile business in the past from a selling standpoint has been the fact that the majority of buyers, especially the new owners, wait until the latter part of March or the first of April before they place their order.

And then they spend the next couple of months berating the agent because he can't make prompt deliveries, when in fact the large percentage of his prospects have developed into certainities during the same time, and all are howling for their cars.

Go to any agent of a standard make car in Portsmouth today, and ask him about getting a car for April delivery, and he will tell you that he has sold out his quota for that month. Ask him to sell you a car for immediate delivery, and he will take your order as quickly as you can sign your name to a check or contract.

The fact is, that a large majority of people, think that they can't have a bright, shiny automobile during the spring season unless they buy it new in the spring. But the old seasoned autoist knows that with the proper care that all cars should have, a car purchased now will look just as good in April as it does when it is driven out for the first time, barring, of course, serious accident. The models are the same now as they will be in April, and nothing will be gained by delay.

It is a generally accepted fact in motor circles that the factories turning out mediocre automobiles are kept going by the very people who postpone their purchases so long that they have to take what they can get in the spring if they insist on immediate delivery. The standard makes are all contracted for weeks ahead. So if you want a new car this spring, and are wise, buy it now or during the next month. This is written as a straight tip to prospective buyers, and not with the thought of helping the dealers, although they are welcome to all the benefit that they may derive from it.

ONLY 35 CARS CAN ENTER "CLASSIC"

The Indianapolis Motor Speedway last week issued entry blanks for the sixth annual International Sweepstakes Race, to be held May 30. The distance for this year's race is 300 miles.

The Hoosier event is for class "E" cars nonstock, 300 cubic inches piston displacement or under, minimum weight 2500 pounds. The race will start at 1:30 p. m. It is interesting to note that every car must show a speed of at least 80 miles per hour in the official speed trials of one lap of the track in order to be eligible to start in the race. These speed trials are to be held on May 26 and 27. A ruling of the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association, which will be enforced, declares that not more than three cars of any one make may start in any one speed event as a factory or team entry. Two additional cars of the same make may start, provided they are entered by individuals having no connection with the factory team, but are bona fide private entries. In event of more than five cars of one make being entered, the fastest five in the official speed trials shall be eligible. The Indianapolis management restricts the number of cars in this race to 35.

RIGHT TEST OF REO CARS

"Seems like an awfully expensive equipment," said a Reo dealer on a recent visit to the factory, when he was shown into the big engine and chassis testing department with the rows upon rows of dynamometers and other electrical apparatus.

"It does look like it," said the Reo guide. "As a matter of fact our sales department tells us it is one of the most economical features of our plant. What seems to be extravagant in fact really proves to be very cheap when it comes to selling the product—you know we make automobiles to sell, not to keep.

"Every Reo motor and every Reo rear axle, every transmission and every chassis—each individual one—is subjected to the most rigid and precise dynamometer test. Not only the power of the motor, but the efficiency of the transmission mechanism, clean back to the tires is tested here and accurately recorded by electrical instruments.

"It is not as extravagant as it looks, however, for if you will notice from each of these dynamometers runs a set of wires. In the next room I will show where we utilize power that is generated by Reo motors, fours and sixes, during their several hours of test."

GOLD CHASSIS ONSTUDEBAKER A SENSATION

Built and finished at a cost of more than $25,000, the Studebaker gold chassis proved the biggest sensation at the New York automobile show. This chassis will be on view at other leading motor car exhibits throughout the country.

Men who have attended every automobile show since the first was held say they were never treated to as big a surprise as this Studebaker chassis, finished from stem to stern in purest gold. It is the most expensive chassis ever built, and yet it is standard in every detail of construction, with the exception of its brilliant gold finish.

More than 350 ounces of pure gold were used, and nearly 3000 parts are finished in gold. Only one firm in the country had the facilities to undertake the job, and even this concern, Yale & Towne, of Stamford, Conn., had to arrange for special 115-foot vats and other equipment.

This chassis, protected by heavy insurance, has been watched constantly by Pinkerton men since its arrival in the city, chiefly to keep admirers and curiosity seekers from clipping off pieces of the gold for souvenirs.

In addition to being the most expensive chassis at any motor show, this Studebaker gold chassis is costlier by far than any complete car in the history of automobile shows.

The gold chassis does more than simply repose in its majesty. Cut out, it reveals the vital mechanism of the car in a way that is a liberal education to those interested in seeing just how the mechanism of an automobile works.

DODGE BROTHERS IN FOURTH PLACE

According to Automobile Topics, a trade authority, recent figures submitted to Wall Street interests with regards to the volume of business done by the various motor car companies during the first nine months of 1915, put Dodge Brothers in fourth place.

Dodge Brothers have no dealings with the financiers, as the business is owned entirely by the brothers, John F. and Horace E., but the figures were submitted by another company which placed itself considerably further down in the list.

The accomplishment of Dodge Brothers in one year of starting the manufacture of motor cars and then jumping into fourth place in the nation is regarded as the most amazing performance in the industry, which has always been full of surprises.

No announcement on production plans for next year has been made by Dodge Brothers but it is known that several new buildings are being rushed to completion, and that the total floor space of the plant will total more than 60 acres when these new buildings are occupied.

A SWEEPING CHALLENGE ISSUED BY GOODRICH FIRM

In a challenge issued to other tire manufacturers, the B. F. Goodrich company of Akron, Ohio, declared itself willing to throw open its books and records to an independent audit company, if other companies will do the same, that the Goodrich company may prove it manufactures more automobile and truck tires combined than any other concern in America. The challenge states that the Goodrich company manufactured in the last year more than 2,350,000 tires.

The formal wording of the challenge follows:

"To any rubber or tire manufacturing concern which claims production and sale of as many auto and truck tires combined (or any or all of its United States factories) as were produced and sold by the Akron (Ohio) factory to the B. F. Goodrich company during the last fiscal year of each we extend this challenge.

"We will throw open our books and records of tire manufacture and sale to a fair and impartial audit, supervised by a committee of three to be mutually agreed upon, provided the competing tire concern will do the same.

"We will abide by the result of that audit, and agree that all rubber or tire concerns who are parties thereto be free to publish the certified findings of that audit as to the comparative volume of each company's combined auto and truck tire production and sale.

"We confine the audit to the production and sale of auto and truck tires combined to those made in the American (U. S. A.) factories of each concern, thus excluding our own foreign factory and the foreign factories of all competitors.

"We do this because the volume of these foreign factories cannot materially help in lowering the cost of production and the selling of tires, as made by the American factories of each, and because some American rubber concerns have no foreign factories.

"We claim and know that the Akron (Ohio) factory of the B. F. Goodrich company makes and sells more auto and truck tires combined than any other rubber factory in America (U. S. A.) or any rubber company which operates five or more tire and rubber factories in the United States.

"We extend this open challenge to all doubters and all tire advertisers, who should now either justify their claims for the largest volume by accepting this fair challenge or cease making such misleading claims."

Supplementary to the challenge is a statement issued by the B. F. Goodrich company in which it declares certain reports that it had abandoned the manufacturing of white rubber tires because of prohibitive war prices for white pigment, or for other reasons, and is building the so-called black tread "barefoot" tire as a substitute. To support the denial the company declares it has tons of white ingredients necessary to build rubber tires on hand at market prices, and that it knows where plenty more is available.

If It's Paige It's the Best

WHEN you buy a Paige Fairfield "Six-46" for $1295, you buy a motor car that has already been nationally endorsed.

It isn't necessary for us to "claim" for this car, beauty, full seven-passenger comfort, power, service and general motoring elegance throughout.

It isn't necessary to "claim" that the Fairfield has a speed of "sixty miles an hour" and throttles down to two and a half miles an hour. Every Paige Fairfield does that.

Paige cars are not racing cars. They are designed and manufactured to give ladies and gentlemen the maximum of luxurious motoring. A Fairfield was recently driven by a lady from New York to San Francisco—WITHOUT ANY MECHANICAL TROUBLE WHATSOEVER. Tried and recognized service is the claim of the Paige.

All of these things have been definitely established by thousands of Americans who own and drive the Fairfield—who have selected it in preference to any and all other light Sixes on the market.

No radical, revolutionary experiments will be found in the Fairfield. This car is supreme in genuine, basic, obvious Quality.

The Fairfield is an ESTABLISHED SUCCESS and the American people have so declared it.

The new Fleetwood "Six-38"—$1050—is in every important feature a five-passenger reproduction of the Fairfield.

PAIGE IS CONFINING ITSELF TO "SIX" FIELD

On general policy the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Co. stands pat for the new season, in spite of all exceptional conditions in the labor and material market and unmoved by tendencies here and there to experiment with fancies in design and mechanics.

The Paige claim of a resounding hit in the field of Sixes seems justified in view of the popularity of this car and the fact that six months ago rapidly expanding business compelled the erection of large additions to the new factory that had just been entered and preparations for new manufacturing methods and greater supplies of material.

The Paige is confining itself exclusively to the Six field and opens the year 1916 with two models, the five passenger "Six-38," selling for $1050, and the seven passenger "Six-46," selling for $1295. For the latter chassis, however, there are several additional body styles; the Cabriolet at $1600; the Coupe at $1700; the Sedan at $1900, and the Town Car at $2250.

COLUMBUS WILL HAVE AUTO SHOW

The Annual Dealers' Columbus Automobile Show, will be held again this year, in Memorial Hall, for one week, January 29th to February 5th.

The same progressive dealers, who were responsible for the eminently successful show given last winter, are again co-operating to give Central Ohio the biggest and best automobile show in the state.

The entire main floor of the large auditorium, will be occupied by motor car exhibits, six cars being shown in the big lobby, which last year was devoted to accessory displays. This year all of the parts and accessory exhibits will be together on the balcony floor.

The big hall will again be transformed into a beautiful garden, by a decorative plan, even more elaborate than in previous years, and will compare only with the big National shows in New York and Chicago.

As the first week in February is recognized, in the itinerary of the big annual shows, as Columbus Week, all of the special show equipment from the National shows will be on display, including several cut-open chassis, part-stand displays and complete cars, especially finished for show purposes.

The complete lines of the following makes of popular cars will be on exhibition the entire week: Packard, Pierce-Arrow, Cadillac, Hudson, Chalmers, Ford, Overland, Franklin, Reo, Cole, Studebaker, Dodge, Dorr, Abbott, Apperson, Crow, Davis, Detroit Electric, Haynes, Interstate, Jeffrey, King, Kissel, Knr, Willys-Knight, Madison, Milburn Electric, Monitor, Oakland, Paige, Velie, Patterson, Scripps-Booth, Pullman, Westcott, Waverly Electric, Chevrolet.

CARS ARE USED ALL YEAR ROUND

ONE thing has been emphasized in the automobile business this winter above all else is that owners are now using their cars the year round. So much improvement has been made in the winter tops and curtains that automobiling in the winter is now a pleasure instead of being unpleasant.

Practically every standard make car can be equipped for comfortable winter use, and the local agents are prepared to furnish the necessary equipment, for which there has been a greater demand than ever during the past two months.

ONE PUNCTURE IN 7,000 MILES

M. R. Stewart, a jitney proprietor of Spokane, tells a story of tire endurance which he is ready to substantiate for anyone who makes it an object. He says his Maxwell touring car has run 7,000 miles on one set of tires and without a change or repair except for one puncture. The car has made four round trips every day since Oct. 1 between Spokane and Vera.

"BALANCE" ADVANTAGE OF ALL SIX CYLINDERS

"If the advantage of the six-cylinder motor had to be defined in one word that word would be 'balance,'" says R. H. Collins, general sales manager Buick Motor company. "Makers of six-cylinder motors contend that this type of power plant yields the maximum of smooth power that can be obtained without the necessity for more or less costly mechanical sacrifices. Theoretically, of course, the smoothness of the power developed by a motor increases as the cylinders are increased in number. Makers of sixes contend, however, that beyond a certain point this extra smoothness of power has no significance to the average motorist. They argue that for all practical purposes the six-cylinder motor supplies power that is smooth enough to be defined as practically liquid in its flow.

"The Buick Motor company, of Flint, received thousands of inquiries after their 'sixes' exclusively," announcement, asking why their output would be confined to that one type. The reply in each instance was to the effect that the six-cylinder motor offered the greatest possible motor smoothness and balance that could be built into a motor of simple construction. The company contends that in the present stage of engineering development to go beyond six cylinders would involve a mechanical complexity, and expense which would not be warranted by the advantages gained. The company also takes the position that the six is the logical motor from the standpoint of public favor as well as the standpoint of mechanical efficiency.

WILL ATTEND AUTO SHOW

Many local dealers are planning to attend the Columbus Automobile Show, which will be held at Memorial Hall, January 29th to February 5th. The Columbus Show is always one of the best held in the state, practically every line of cars being on exhibition there, as well as a complete line of auto accessories and novelties.

REDUCTION OF $55 ON OVERLAND

A reduction of $55 in the price of the $750 Overland is the most startling New Year's announcement made by John N. Willys, president of the Willys-Overland company, of Toledo.

This is the model which in the last six months has broken all sales records for Overland cars. Since June more than 50,000 of them have been sold in all parts of the world.

Due to the foresight and keen business sense of Mr. Willys, the materials used in Overland cars this year were bought before the war sent prices soaring. To gain some idea of these savings, it is stated that the company has been able to save $3,500,000 on aluminum alone, while the saving on steel and many other raw materials is in proportion.

Production capacity has jumped to a thousand cars a day.

MR. STAHLER WILL OPEN GARAGE

Announcement of his plan to remodel the building at 430 Market street, formerly occupied as a warehouse by the Gilbert Grocery Company, for an automobile sales room and garage was made by David Stahlner, local agent for the Reo automobile, Friday afternoon.

Mr. Stahlner stated that when the improvements were completed, he would be prepared to handle the repairs on all Reo cars and give his patrons the very best attention and service possible.

He has already started an energetic advertising campaign for the Reo car, which he will follow up with an active selling campaign. He is looking forward to the most successful season since he embarked in the automobile business.

Ohio's Auto Bill Over $100,000,000

Ohio's automobile bill last year making 12 miles to the gallon, was $107,450,000, according to the January issue of the Ohio Motorist. This includes new cars purchased at an average price, and the operation of the registered vehicles. This astounding total was reached by conservative reckoning and estimates.

More than 180,000 cars were registered in Ohio in 1915. This is an increase of 58,000 over the 1914 license list. An average price—and conservative too—for these cars would be $750 each. That would make the total amount of new cars $43,500,000.

Seven thousand miles is an average year's driving. Considering the total number of cars in the state—old and new—and each making 12 miles to the gallon, with fuel at 13 cents a gallon, (it's higher now), the gasoline bill for the year's operation would be $13,660,000. Oil would cost $800,000. If each car wore out only one set of tires, and each set costs an average of $75, Ohio spent $13,500,000 for tires.

There are many other items, such as garaging, insurance, and repairs. If $200 was spent for such items on each car the total for such would be $36,000,000. Such reckoning is conservative even when there is taken into consideration the condition that some of the cars were not operated the entire year. The total of $107,450,000 would allow less than $60 per month for each of 150,000 of the cars.

Packard Company Acquires Land For Aviation Field

A large tract of land on Lake St. Clair, near Mount Clemens, Mich., has been acquired by the Packard Motor Car company, as an aviation field and landing place for aeroplane tourists. This announcement has been made by J. G. Vincent, vice-president of engineering.

Aeroplanes will be received within a month and experiments will commence immediately thereafter, it is understood. As was said recently by President Henry B. Joy, the Packard company has become strongly interested in aviation affairs, and tests with the view of proving the value of the twelve-cylinder motor for aeroplane use have been in progress for six months.

In anticipation of the greater use of the aeroplane for touring purposes, the field will be made available for the comfort and convenience of aero tourists, and probably will be equipped with hangars, repair shops and supply stations, it is understood.

AUTOMOBILES ARE NEXT

Charleston, W. Va., Jan. 15.—The state prohibition department now that the railroads, steamboats and many other forms of public carriers are fairly well rid of the liquor carrying traffic are to turn their attention to the bringing of liquors by automobile. The department officials say that indictments will be brought against such auto drivers who for hire transport liquors into the state.

A case in Wayne county is cited. An automobile broke down and the authorities learned that it carried a cargo of liquor. The driver was arrested and indicted, before a Wayne grand jury.

Oakland "Eight" Makes 1916 Bow

The coming of a new model is always an event of interest to the motoring public. The latest is the Oakland Eight, just arrived, a new seven-passenger touring car with every modern improvement. This car is known as the Model 50. It is a big seventy-horse power car with a 127-inch wheelbase. The motor exemplifies the latest and best V type design. It is of the high speed, high-efficiency type and combines power and sturdiness with silence, flexibility and rapid acceleration. It has a speed range of one and a half miles an hour to sixty on high gear. The cylinder heads are detachable and the accessibility of all parts is unusual. Some examples of the careful engineering done to perfect the Oakland Eight are in the counter-balanced crankshaft, aluminum pistons and other features of construction which help to eliminate vibration, reduce weight and increase power and smoothness of action. The frame is heavy and well balanced with a taper at the front to give a short turning radius.

CLAIMS 65,000 CARS TIED UP IN NEW YORK

The congestion of freight at New York and other Atlantic ocean ports, which is greater than anything ever experienced in the memory of the oldest shipping men in the United States, is growing more serious daily, and is causing great concern to traffic managers of Detroit motor car manufacturers. C. J. Shan, traffic manager of the Packard Motor Car company, says that the shortage of automobile freight cars in Detroit is particularly serious. It is estimated that nearly 65,000 cars are tied up at or near New York City.

OFFICER HENDERSON PUT BACK ON FORCE AND THEN HE IS AGAIN SUSPENDED

The city police officials enacted an "On Again, Off Again, Finner" stunt in the case of Anderson Henderson, suspended patrolman, before the newly appointed Civil Service Commission Friday evening.

The order of removal was withdrawn by agreement of counsel and with the consent of the commissioners and Henderson was formally reinstated to his position by Police Chief Henry Clark, who was present, only to be indefinitely removed a few moments later by E. K. S. Clark, board, director of public safety, on new charges.

The latest charges against the patrolman are as follows:

1. Violation of the State Civil Service laws, to-wit: That on or about October 20th, the said Anderson Henderson was guilty of soliciting votes for certain candidates to be voted upon at the election of November 2nd.

2. Violation of the State Civil Service laws in that on or about October 15th the said Anderson Henderson was guilty of discourteous treatment of the public, using improper language to various women of the North End.

The charges were read by Clerk T. M. Gynan and a copy of them served upon Mr. Henderson. The commission was disposed to grant him reasonable time in which to prepare for a hearing, but he declared himself ready and willing that it proceed at once. It was finally decided to hold the hearing at 7:30 Tuesday evening, January 18th.

City Solicitor Anselm Skelton held that in view of Henderson's reinstatement he would be entitled to full pay for every day of his period of the original suspension, including Friday.

Henderson was suspended on the evening of January 8th, on charges prepared by Mayor H. H. Kaps and signed by Chief Henry Clark.

Under the latest civil service laws the director of public safety is the proper official to suspend an officer, and this discovery is thought to have been one of the reasons for the withdrawal of the order of removal. Henderson was originally charged with drinking while on duty and of pernicious activity in politics.

The new commission had no sooner organized and disposed of other preliminaries when Solicitor Skelton proposed that the order of removal in Henderson's case be withdrawn. Former Solicitor H. Stanley McCall, counsel for Mr. Henderson, suggested that in order to make the records more complete, that a motion would be in order to the effect that the commission consent to the withdrawal. Melvin Funk, the Democratic member of the commission, moved that such consent be given, but John Eckhart, Republican, resisted Mr. Funk's urgent and good-natured pleas for a second to his motion. He first preferred to receive an opinion from Solicitor Skelton, who had stepped into the front office. Once Mr. Skelton had assured him that such consent would have no bearing on or interfere with any future proceedings in the case, Mr. Eckhart cheerfully seconded the motion and it carried unanimously.

The commission was about to adjourn when Chief Clark stepped forward, saying: "I have the honor of reinstating Mr. Henderson as patrolman." The commissioners contended that it was a matter with which it had nothing to do, as there was nothing more before them. Solicitor Skelton began addressing the commissioners on the subject of new rules and when he had finished Clerk Gynan presented the new charges against the patrolman.

The commission organized before taking up the Henderson case by electing George W. Sheppard as president and Mr. Gynan as clerk. Announcement was made that it would conduct examinations of applicants for city positions on January 24th and 25th.

Solicitor Skelton suggested that the department heads prepare lists of questions and answers and furnish them to the applicants, and after all of them have been returned on examination night the commission choose therefrom certain questions on the newly given answers, of which will be based the rating of the respective applicants. He said this was the custom followed in many cities.

Solicitor Skelton recommended that the commission adopt rules that would apply to local conditions. He said the rules of the former commission were patterned after the Cincinnati rules, were indefinite and not applicable to local conditions. He said he was sure to take it upon himself to communicate with Springfield and secure a copy of its rules and submit them to the commission to select from such as will meet with their views and ideas. He said the city council cannot afford to make any large appropriation for the commission to carry on its work and that it must therefore do the best it can under the circumstances. It was suggested that the law provides that the commissioners shall receive compensation for their services, but the former commissioners had never availed themselves of the opportunity. This seemed to strike a responsive chord with Mr. Funk and he joyfully declared in favor of the commission looking up the salary end of the proposition.

COUNTERFEITERS CAUGHT ON A LOCAL SHANTYBOAT

The arrest in Ironton Thursday of John Savage, of this county, led to the discovery of a counterfeiting establishment on the houseboat, "Square Deal," anchored on the shore of the Ohio river, just east of the Breese Manufacturing Company's plant in New Boston, Friday afternoon, by Portsmouth and Ironton officials.

Following the discovery and confiscation of the equipment on the boat, Newton Jones, 58, who lives on the boat, confessed to the officers that he had been manufacturing bogus gold coins for several weeks, and that John Savage, who also resides on the boat, and his son, Emory Savage, of 2343 Eighth street, this city, had been passing it. The older Savage had already confessed to passing counterfeit money at Ironton Thursday evening.

John Savage was arrested in Ironton Thursday afternoon on complaint of a grocer named Lynn, who claimed that he tendered a spurious $5 gold coin to him in payment for some eggs. The grocer discovered that the coin was counterfeit after he had given good money in return as change, and he started out after the alleged swindler.

He located him and then notified the police, who placed Savage under arrest. Later, it was learned that he had passed spurious coins on other Ironton merchants and that he had exhibited a large number of gold coins in his possession. The latter fact is what caused the Ironton authorities to suspect the man of being in league with a gang of counterfeiters.

Savage was lodged in the Ironton jail and repeated "sweating" by Chief of Police Mayne finally brought the admission from him that he had been passing counterfeit coins, which were made in a houseboat near Portsmouth.

Chief Mayne got into communication Friday afternoon with Sheriff Smith and made an appointment with the local official to meet him and Safety Director Abelo, also of Ironton, at New Boston, Friday afternoon at three o'clock. Sheriff Smith and his son, Earl, were there at the appointed time, and met the Ironton officials. Together they went to the boat where Savage was being held. Jones at first made a strenuous denial of all knowledge of the coin, but when a thorough search revealed several mounds, several bottles of acid and kerosene, and other counterfeiting paraphernalia under the floor in the hull of the boat, he made a clean breast of his guilt. He told the officers that his part of the work consisted of manufacturing the coins, while John and Emory Savage looked after the circulating of them.

Chief Mayne and Safety Director Abelo returned to Ironton by automobile with Jones, who was lodged in the Ironton jail. Friday evening Chief Mayne returned to Portsmouth and in company with Sheriff Smith, arrested Emory Savage at his home on Eighth street. He is also lodged in jail.

Charges of counterfeiting will be lodged against Jones, while Savage and his son will be charged with passing counterfeit money. The Federal authorities have been notified and the prosecution will be looked after by the government officials.

"NOT IN A THOUSAND YEARS" CAN HUERTA'S BODY ENTER MEXICO SAY CARRANZA OFFICIALS

El Paso, Texas, Jan. 15.—Garbed in the showy uniform of a Mexican general, the body of General Victoriano Huerta, former provisional president of the Mexican republic, lay in state here all day Friday and was viewed by a large number of his former adherents.

Late in the afternoon, members of the family and former officers of the Mexican army followed the casket to Concordia cemetery, where brief services were conducted by Rev. Father Carlos

Mayer. It is planned to remove the body to Mexico City after peace is restored, in compliance with the General's dying request. Upon being asked when Huerta's body could be taken to the capital of his country, Carranza officials here answered positively: "Not in a thousand years!" No request for permission to transmit the body through Mexican territory had been made of the de facto government, it was said.

SERIOUS DAMAGE FROM BIG FLOOD IN DUTCH COUNTRY

London, Jan. 15.—The damage caused by the flood in Northern Holland is said by Reuter's Amsterdam correspondent to be greater than was believed at first. The great dikes along the Zuider Zee collapsed at several places, with their cattle fled precipitately before the rising waters.

Near Muiden the dike broke at several points before the people realized the danger. The waters of the Zuider Zee rushed through the gaps with such force as to wash away large sections of the road which runs along the dike. From all north Holland come reports of distress caused by the flood.

Considerable damage was done at Volendam and Edam, in Texel and Marken Islands and in the province of Groningen.

"PROTECT U. S. AGAINST BOTH DOMESTIC AND FOREIGN ENEMIES"

FEDERAL JUDGE BUFFINGTON.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 15.—Judge Joseph Buffington, of the United States circuit court of appeals, addressing 100 newly naturalized foreigners in the federal court here yesterday pointed out that they now had but one country to support, and urged them to be careful about participating in labor strikes, as he thought but little good could come from them.

Jones at first made a strenuous denial of all knowledge of the coin, but when a thorough search revealed several mounds, several bottles of acid and kerosene, and other counterfeiting paraphernalia under the

it against all enemies both domestic and foreign", said Judge Buffington.

"If this country should be plunged into war, and God forbid that it ever will, you must remember that you owe allegiance to this country only, even against the land of your birth. Attend night school and have your children attend day school. Back up the teachers and help them with your children. Drinking booze when your children need shoes is the worst temptation you will encounter. Also remember your marriage vows and keep them. Get acquainted with American men and women and have your families get acquainted with American people. It will help you. In the old country you were accustomed to seeing soldiers standing about the streets to make you do right. In this country we don't have the soldiers, but we have the laws just the same. Obey the laws and we will help you."

GERMANS TO APPLY REPRISAL AGAINST BRITISH IN THE BARALONG CASE

Berlin, Jan. 15.—(By wireless to Sayville).—The German government has made the following reply in the Baralong case:

"The British government answered the German memorandum in the Baralong case by expressing doubts on the one hand of the correctness of the facts communicated by the German government, and by making an accusation, on the other hand against German military and naval forces of having deliberately committed countless crimes against international law and humanity which had been unpunished and compared with which the alleged offense of the captain and crew of the Baralong fades into insignificance. The British government has contented itself with mentioning without any evidence three incidents in connection with naval warfare in which German officers are alleged to have committed atrocities in violation of international law.

"The British government proposes an investigation of these cases by a court composed of American naval officers, and, under this condition is ready to submit the Baralong case to the same court.

"The German government protests most sharply against the unprecedented and unprovoked action of the British government in regard to the German army and navy, the imputation that the German authorities have not dealt with any such crimes as have come to their attention. The German army and navy in the war observe the principles of international law and humanity and the higher authorities insist in the event offenses are committed they shall be investigated most closely and punished sternly.

"The three cases mentioned by the British government were investigated thoroughly at the time by competent German authorities.

"First, in the case of the sinking of the Arabic by a German submarine, the investigation showed that the submarine commander was forced from circumstances to draw the conclusion that the steamer was attempting to ram his craft. He, therefore, believed himself to be acting in justifiable self defense when he attacked the ship.

"The second case mentioned—the attack of a German destroyer upon a British submarine—occurred in this manner: A light developed in those waters between two warships, in which the submarine defended itself by gun fire. The British government can have little ground for advancing the charge that Danish neutrality was violated by the German attack. In view of the fact that British naval forces in a series of cases attacked German ships in neutral waters.

"Finally in the case of the destruction of the British steamer Ruel, the German submarine merely applied measures of reprisal announced by Germany in February, 1915. These measures are in harmony with international law because England is endeavoring by illegal means to tie up the legitimate maritime commerce between Germany and neutral countries, to cut off Germany from all imports and thereby starve the German people. Appropriate reprisals are permissible against measures in violation of international law.

"In all cases the German naval forces intended only to destroy hostile ships and in no way to slay helpless persons who were attempting to save their lives. The assertions to the contrary of the British government must be repudiated with all decisiveness as untrue."

"The German government is of the opinion that it might reject as unacceptable the British proposal to submit these three cases, together with the Baralong case, to investigation by a court of American naval officers. It takes the standpoint that charges against members of the German forces must be investigated by its own competent authorities, and that the persons accused be given every surety of an unprejudiced verdict with just punishment where necessary.

"In the Baralong case it has advanced to the British government no request other than this, not doubting for a moment that a court martial composed of British naval officers would inflict suitable punishment for the cowardly and perfidious murder. This request was the more justifiable because of the fact that the guilt of the commander and crew of the Baralong was established practically beyond doubt by affidavits made by Americans, who are neutral witnesses, and submitted to the British government.

"The manner in which the British government has answered the German government does not correspond in form and contents with the gravity of the situation and makes it impossible for Germany to negotiate further with the British government in regard to this matter. The German government, therefore, takes the ground, as the final result of the negotiations that the British government under empty pretext has left unfulfilled the justified demands for an examination of the Baralong case and thereby has made itself responsible for the crime of denying international law and humanity.

"Inasmuch as the British government has declined to make amends for this outrageous incident, the German government feels itself compelled to take into its own hands punishment for this unatoned crime and to adopt measures of reprisal corresponding with the provocation."

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15.—Press comment Count Von Bernstorff, the German ambassador would make concerning the dispatches. At the German embassy it was said that the ambassador had paid considerable money to Von Papen as salary and for the expense of such work as he was expected to conduct as military attaché.

Administration officials declined to comment on dispatches pending the receipt of copies of the correspondence, which have been given to the American embassy in London for transmission to the state department.

LENDING A HAND

The Times believes the agricultural possibilities of Scioto county are not half developed. There are many thousands of acres of productive land in it uncultivated and scarce an acre yielding up to its full capacity. This paper is thoroughly committed to the encouragement of development and it therefore welcomes any agency that lends a helping hand in this direction. It is therefore much pleased to find one financial institution, the Security Savings Bank and Trust Company, doing much that is sure to prove of vast benefit. This bank will institute a boys' corn growing contest and besides this it is distributing thousands of farmers' records and account books and an interesting and valuable pamphlet, "Alfalfa, the Money Crop." The record and account, if rightly kept, will prove a considerable aid towards making the farm profitable. It will show gains and losses and with such information the farmer will be able to increase the one and avoid or minimize the latter. Farming does not produce anything like the successful results possible because he who does it has not the clear understanding of his business that figures and the study which they will certainly bring about, will give him.

Alfalfa is coming to be regarded as the sheet anchor of farming. It is a crop doubly profitable, in its own right and as a fertilizer and redeemer of the land. Somehow there is a large conviction that it is a hard crop to grow and in many places impossible. The pamphlet, distributed by the Security bank, shows how mistaken this conception is. For it is not a theoretical treatise, written by some scientific agriculturist, or government expert, but the work of a plain, practical farmer, who has made his own experiments and worked out his own problems. What he has done he makes clear enough that practically every other husbandman can do.

It is high time we should cease giving such faith to assertion that "such things can not be raised in Scioto county" and go to schooling ourselves in what all see can raise to her greater advancement.

LETTER FROM MR. SCHREICK

We have another letter from Joseph L. Schreick, which, in a way, is quite as interesting as the one he wrote in defense of Americans of German descent. We may say, however, that Mr. Schreick is wrong in his assumption that the men who called us up expressed the belief that he did not write the letter in question. They simply wanted to know who he was and to say that they thought his letter was a most excellent one. Mr. Schreick's second letter follows:

Editor Times, Dear Sir: Many thanks for your nice editorial; and I'm not surprised that people called you up to inquire whether I really wrote that article. Many of my friends asked me the same question. Several said they did not think it was in me. They, one and all, seem to labor under the delusion that the most fluent talkers are the deepest thinkers.

If I was successful in intelligently stringing together the sentences in that article, it was because my deepest feelings had become raw and hurt, by a succession of unfair and un-American attacks on our Fatherland, and their questioning our loyalty to the Land of the Free and the Home of the Brave.

Yours respectfully,
JOS. L. SCHREICK.

We wish again to call attention to Farmers' Week at the Ohio State University, the dates being January 31, February 1, 2, 3 and 4. It will be a week of great profit to those who attend, lecturers on farm topics having been engaged to demonstrate the most up-to-date methods in farming. Aside from the course at the college, it will do you good to get away from home awhile, to rub elbows with people from other parts of the state. The cost of the week is small. The college part is free and the only expense is for board and lodging and arrangements have been made so that these will be gotten at minimum cost. There ought to be a hundred on hands from Scioto county, at the very least. Think it over and make up your mind that you and your wife are going to be among those present.

THE COP MAY HAVE TO SETTLE 'EM YET

THEIR EQUAL RIGHTS

Discussing to a grand jury the new dangers in congested traffic districts that have arisen with the advent of the automobile a Cincinnati judge laid down some law that it would be well for all to know and to understand. One point was the utter lack of the punishment to fit the crime, where death results from reckless driving. Under the statute a driver may send his car along a crowded thoroughfare at a speed that means the inevitable killing of some one and yet a short term in the penitentiary is the severest penalty that could be visited upon him, unless a mob seized and lynched him.

There is a conviction of the man afoot that he has some superior right of way over the vehicle, while the driver is certain he has claim to the right of way above that of the pedestrian. Both are mistaken. Neither has a superior right to the other and each is mutually responsible in prudence and regard for the rights of the other. When the pedestrian reaches the curb, he should look carefully to see his way is clear and that no approaching vehicle threatens his safety before he steps to the street. On the other hand, the driver, as machine draws to the crossing should take a careful view and see his way is clear and that he increases not the hazard of some heedless one. As the judge comments, if each would appreciate the rights of the other, feel the conviction that every citizen must, in a sense, be the protector of another, if we would carry with us always proper precaution for our own safety, accidents would be of much less frequent occurrence.

The great provocative to them is our common heedlessness and assumption of special rights that have no foundation in fellowship or in law.

We call it most unkind in Congressman Kearns to send us on a beautiful calendar picture of the capitol at Washington just at the time when we had decided that we did not want to succeed him. It sort of looks like sending flowers to the funeral of our "career."

Total exports in November of bread stuffs, cotton seed oil, cattle, hogs and sheep, meat and dairy products, cotton and mineral oils amounted to $94,667,866. In November, 1914, they amounted to $97,190,040. Last November we exported 45,373,535 pounds of bacon. In November a year ago we exported 18,802,389 pounds.

We rather get the impression from perusal of Editor Sibley's columns these January days that he puts in part of his time in reading roasts on President Wilson in the New York Tribune and the balance of it in indignation over what he has read.

We see no reason why the towpath should enter into competition with that temporary bridge of blessed memory in making itself impassable.

Editor Funk, of the Oak Hill Press, fresh from a vacation, goes into raptures over a charming lady whom he seems to have met during his travels. We are shocked and surprised at this from a newly-wed, as will be all of Funk's friends when they read the following:

"There's a woman down at Cincinnati that is a peach. All the newspaper boys know it, too, for her photo is to be found in most every print shop. Yes, we have a likeness of this beauty, but our wife declared martial law and we had to leave Helen at home. To use the words of Editor Harry Taylor of the Portsmouth Times, some printer, 'ought to be, borrow or steal' fair Helen Reed and drag her off to his cave to become his wife. This beauty sells printers' ink."

They ought to call the junior senator from Illinois "Sherman, the Seether." It is a mighty small provocation that he does not indignate over and one of his brain storms reminds one of a tempest in a teapot.

A half dozen Austrians were shot to death and a score wounded at East Youngstown the other day. Still we hear no voice calling on the dual monarchy to come over here and clean up with us.

The unpopularity of bachelors dates from the time it was customary for the girls to go out with slap-sticks and beat all the unmarried men who came their way. And still there are "slackers" in matrimony, as well as in war.—Columbus Dispatch.

Speaking of grip, what has become of the red flannel amulet, charged with asafetida, that mother used to hang around the neck of her young hopeful at this season?

We suppose that horribly stencherful water we have had to drink this week is also a heritage from the recent administration; and also that slide into the settling basin.

Cincinnati reports a mysterious noise that startled the whole city early in the morning. Some future day when the state votes dry there will be a louder tumult thereabouts with no doubt as to its origin.

These Democratic times grow worse and worse. Some militia are complaining they can't get enough steel to keep up with their orders for specialities.

Wonders never cease. For instance the long, profound silence of our good young Governor.

NEW-YORK-DAY-BY-DAY.

O.O. MCINTYRE.

New York, Jan. 15.—When George Randolph Chester migrated from a little town in Indiana to write pieces for the Cincinnati Enquirer, he was given as his first assignment the covering of the hotels—to write the gossip of the lobbies.

Armed with seven pencils and a gilt-edged leather note book, the gift of friends when he departed on his journalistic career, Chester began the rounds of the hotels. At the old Emory Hotel a banquet was in progress and Chester was instructed by the clerk to go up to the banquet hall. He did.

About midnight he called up his office and reported that all was quiet in the hotels. "How about that banquet at the Emory?" he was asked. "Oh, shucks, there wasn't any news to it at all. They didn't even get around to the speech-making. The toastmaster in lighting a cigar set his celluloid collar on fire and everybody went home."

"All right, come on in," said the tired voice of the city editor. "Your next assignment is to be quite an important one. I'm going to send you home to have you find out how they come to turn you loose."

A long-haired young man approached the postal window in the Times Square station and diffidently showed a role of paper through to the stamp clerk.

"What is it?" demanded the latter, as he weighed the package. "Second or third-class material?"

"Don't be so free with your criticism," flared up the youth unexpectedly. "That's the manuscript of my new play."

Howard Aetion was in town from Washington this week bubbling over with enthusiasm and with a weird light of expectancy in his eye. Aetion for some time has been nursing a secret sorrow. He wasn't able to sell a certain song that he had recently written.

The National Press Club gave a minstrel last week and the song was the hit of the performance. He had clippings bulging from every pocket and marched into a big publishing house on Broadway.

"There," he said, throwing a bale of clippings on the desk of E. F. Bitner, the manager. "See what you're overlooked, I told you, I told you."

The manager took one look at Aetion, saw the determination in his face and excused himself for the moment. He has been away three days now and everytime he phones to the office he gets the report that Aetion is snooping around.

Grace Valentin, the dancer, called up an apartment house the other night and a negro bellboy answered. Her party was not in and the boy asked if she wanted to leave a name. "Just say Miss Valentin called," she replied.

"Miss Ballentine, you say?" "No Valentin!" "Don't get you?"

"Do you know what day is celebrated on February fourteenth?" "Oh, sholy," was the reply, "Washington's Birthday. All right, Miss Washington."

Robert W. Chambers, idol of two million stenographers, is writing for the movies. Rather, several of his lovely books are to be movie pictures. Chambers, himself, is too busily engaged in defeating art models with the might of his pen to bother with this celluloid stuff.

There is a rising suspicion that Mrs. Justus Sheffield, the novelist, just now telling of her love affairs in the divorce court, took the title of her novel, "The Golden Hollow," from somebody's head.

The Grouch

I heard a grouch the other day Rehect upon the pouring rain, And grunt, in tummy-achy way, That downpours gave to him a pain:

Yet faith, I've never known a shower That wasn't followed by the sun; 'Tis true, each had its certain hour, But joy ensued when it was done.

The grouch says, "Ain't the winter cold! My nose an' toes are almost friz!" But springtime brings, if truth were told,

No happiness more keen than his; I never knew a winter yet But what was followed by a spring Yet there are those who fume and fret

About the blizzards winters bring, The rose droops on its flexible stem, Then drops to earth and sadly dies, But next year brings a brighter gem

Upon a fresher stem to rise; I never knew a blossom fair To wither, but within the year A better blossom budded where

It exulted sweet and clear, The grouch views all things passing by; He never thinks of those to come; Too prone by far is he to sigh

That everything is growing glum; When he awakes, as sure he will, And finds the better things about, He'll stop his pessimistic shrill

And put his gloomy thoughts to rout. —New York Evening Sun.

GERMANY TO ADOPT REPRISAL

CLAIMS BRITISH HAVE DECLINED TO MAKE AMENDS

Berlin, Jan. 15.---(By wireless to Sayville)---The German government has made the following reply in the Baralong case:

"The British government answered the German memorandum in the Baralong case by expressing doubts on the one hand of the correctness of the facts communicated by the German government, and by making an accusation, on the other hand, against German military and naval forces of having deliberately committed countercrimes against international law and humanity which had been unpunished and compared with which the alleged offense of the captain and crew of the Baralong fades into insignificance. The British government has contented itself with mentioning without any evidence three incidents in connection with naval warfare in which German officers are alleged to have committed atrocities in violation of international law.

"The British government proposes an investigation of these cases by a court composed of American naval officers, and, under this condition is ready to submit the Baralong case to the same court.

"The German government protests most sharply against the unprecedented and unprovoked actions of the British government in regard to the German army and navy, the imputation that the German authorities have not dealt with any such crimes as have come to their attention. The German army and navy in the war observe the principles of international law and humanity and the high authorities insist in the event offenses are committed they shall be investigated most closely and punished sternly.

"The three cases mentioned by the British government were investigated thoroughly at the time by competent German authorities.

"First, in the case of the sinking of the Arabic by a German submarine, the investigation showed that the submarine commander was forced from circumstances to draw the conclusion that the steamer was attempting to ram his craft. He, therefore, behaved himself to be acting in justifiable self defense when he attacked the ship.

"The second case mentioned—the attack of a German destroyer upon a British submarine—occurred in this manner: A light developed in those waters between two warships, in which the submarine defended itself by gun fire. The British government can have little ground for advancing the charge that Danish neutrality was violated by the German attack. In view of the fact that British naval forces in a series of cases attacked German ships in neutral waters.

"Finally in the case of the destruction of the British steamer Rial, the German submarine merely repulsed measures of reprisal commenced by Germany in February, 1915. These measures are in har-

"PROTECT U. S. AGAINST BOTH DOMESTIC AND FOREIGN ENEMIES" —FEDERAL JUDGE BUFFINGTON.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 15.—Judge Joseph Buffington, of the United States circuit court of appeals, addressing 100 newly naturalized foreigners in the federal court here yesterday, pointed out that they now had but one country to support, and urged them to be careful about participating in labor strikes, as he thought but little good could come from them.

"You men now owe an allegiance to the United States and should support it against all enemies both domestic and foreign," said Judge Buffington.

"If this country should be plunged into war, and God forbid that it ever will, you must remember that you owe allegiance to this country only, even against the land of your birth. Attend night school and have your children attend day school. Back up the teachers and help them with your children. Drinking booze when your children need shoes is the worst temptation you will encounter. Also remember your marriage vows and keep them. Get acquainted with American men and women and have your families get acquainted with American people. It will help you. In the old country you were accustomed to seeing soldiers standing about the streets to make you do right. In this country we don't have the soldiers, but we have the laws just the same. Obey the laws and we will help you."

MR. HITE COMES OUT FOR W. VA. SENATORSHIP

The Huntington Herald-Dispatch Saturday morning said:

Last night, in response to a resolution unanimously adopted by the Cabell County Republican Executive committee, and upon solicitation from prominent Republicans in various parts of West Virginia, Mr. William F. Hite, of Huntington, announced his candidacy for the republican nomination for United States senator.

Mr. Hite's response to the resolution and the representations of the committee whose members presented the resolution to him, based his decision upon an apparently well defined movement to harmonize the party in West Virginia. In his letter Mr. Hite disclaimed political ambitions, but holds that there are times when duty is superior to inclination, and assures his friends that, in according to their request for his services, he will loyally and enthusiastically co-operate with them in bringing about the end desired.

SERIOUS DAMAGE FROM BIG FLOOD IN DUTCH COUNTRY

London, Jan. 15.—The damage caused by the flood in Northern Holland is said by Reuter's Amsterdam correspondent to be greater than was believed at first. The great dikes along the Zuider Zee collapsed at several places, with their cattle fled precipitately before the rising waters.

Near Muiden the dike broke at several points before the people realized the danger. The waters of the Zuider Zee rushed through the gaps with such force as to wash away large sections of the road which runs along the dike.

From all north Holland come reports of distress caused by the flood.

Considerable damage was done at Volendam and Edam, in Texel and Marken Islands and in the province of Groningen.

"NOT IN A THOUSAND YEARS" CAN HUERTA'S BODY ENTER MEXICO SAY CARRANZA OFFICIALS

El Paso, Texas, Jan. 15.—Carried in the showy uniform of a Mexican general, the body of General Victoriano Huerta, former provisional president of the Mexican republic, lay in state here all day Friday and was viewed by a large number of his former adherents.

Late in the afternoon, members of the family and former officers of the Mexican army followed the casket to Concordia cemetery, where brief services were conducted by Rev. Father Carlos Mayer. It is planned to remove the body to Mexico City after peace is restored, in compliance with the General's dying request. Upon being asked when Huerta's body could be taken to the capital of his country, Carranza officials here answered positively: "Not in a thousand years!"

No request for permission to transmit the body through Mexican territory had been made of the de facto government, it was said.

At the seizure of correspondence from the German embassy it was said that the ambassador had paid considerable money to Von Papen as salary and for the expense of such work as he was expected to conduct as military attaché.

Administration officials declined to comment on dispatches pending the receipt of copies of the correspondence, which have been given to the American embassy in London for transmission to the state department.

LENDING A HAND

The Times believes the agricultural possibilities of Scioto county are not half developed. There are many thousands of acres of productive land in it uncultivated and scarce an acre yielding up to its full capacity. This paper is thoroughly committed to the encouragement of development and it therefore welcomes any agency that lends a helping hand in this direction. It is therefore much pleased to find one financial institution, the Security Savings Bank and Trust Company, doing much that is sure to prove of vast benefit. This bank will institute a boys' corn growing contest and besides this it is distributing thousands of farmers' records and account books and an interesting and valuable pamphlet, "Alfalfa, the Money Crop." The record and account, if rightly kept, will prove a considerable aid towards making the farm profitable. It will show gains and losses and with such information the farmer will be able to increase the one and avoid or minimize the latter. Farming does not produce anything like the successful results possible because he who does it has not the clear understanding of his business that figures and the study which they will certainly bring about, will give him.

Alfalfa is coming to be regarded as the sheet anchor of farming. It is a crop doubly profitable, in its own right and as a fertilizer and redeemer of the land. Somewhere there is a large conviction that it is a hard crop to grow and in many places impossible. The pamphlet, distributed by the Security Bank, shows how mistaken this conception is. For it is not a theoretical treatise, written by some scientific agriculturist, or government expert, but the work of a plain, practical farmer, who has made his own experiments and worked out his own problems. What he has done he makes clear enough that practically every other husbandman can do.

It is high time we should cease giving such faith to assertion that "such things can not be raised in Scioto county" and go to schooling ourselves in what all else can raise to her greater advancement.

LETTER FROM MR. SCHREICK

We have another letter from Joseph L. Schreick, which, in a way, is quite as interesting as the one he wrote in defense of Americans of German descent. We may say, however, that Mr. Schreick is wrong in his assumption that the men who called us up expressed the belief that he did not write the letter in question. They simply wanted to know who he was and to say that they thought his letter was a most excellent one. Mr. Schreick's second letter follows:

Editor Times, Dear Sir: Many thanks for your nice editorial; and I'm not surprised that people called you up to inquire whether I really wrote that article. Many of my friends asked me the same question. Several said they did not think it was in me. They, one and all, seem to labor under the delusion that the most fluent talkers are the deepest thinkers.

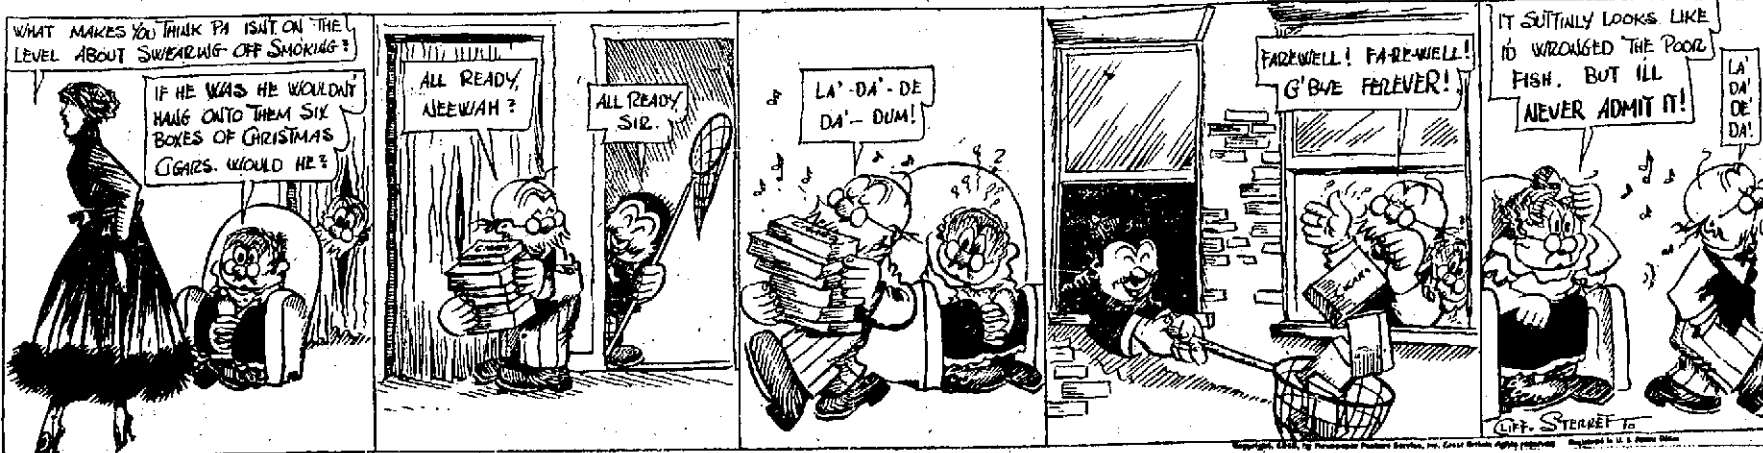

If I was successful in intelligently stringing together the sentences in that article, it was because my deepest feelings had become raw and hurt, by a succession of unfair and un-American attacks on our Fatherland, and their questioning our loyalty to the land of the Free and the Home of the Brave.

Yours respectfully,

JOS. L. SCHREICK.

We wish again to call attention to Farmers' Week at the Ohio State University, the dates being January 31, February 1, 2, 3 and 4. It will be a week of great profit to those who attend, lecturers on farm topics having been engaged to demonstrate the most up-to-date methods in farming. Aside from the course at the college, it will do you good to get away from home awhile, to rub elbows with people from other parts of the state. The cost of the week is small. The college part is free and the only expense is for board and lodging and arrangements have been made so that these will be gotten at minimum cost. There ought to be a hundred on hands from Scioto county, at the very least. Think it over and make up your mind that you and your wife are going to be among those present.

THEIR EQUAL RIGHTS

Discussing to a grand jury the new dangers in congested traffic districts that have arisen with the advent of the automobile a Cincinnati judge laid down some law that it would be well for all to know and to understand. One point was the utter lack of the punishment to fit the crime, where death results from reckless driving. Under the statute a driver may send his car along a crowded thoroughfare at a speed that means the inevitable killing of some one and yet a short turn in the penitentiary is the severest penalty that could be visited upon him, unless a mob seized and lynched him.

There is a conviction of the man afoot that he has some superior right of way over the vehicle, while the driver is certain he has claim to the right of way above that of the pedestrian. Both are mistaken. Neither has a superior right to the other and each is mutually responsible in prudence and regard for the rights of the other. When the pedestrian reaches the curb, he should look carefully to see his way is clear and that no approaching vehicle threatens his safety before he steps to the street. On the other hand, the driver, as machine draws to the crossing should take a careful view and see his way is clear and that he increases not the hazard of some heedless one. As the judge comments, if each would appreciate the rights of the other, feel the conviction that every citizen must, in a sense, be the protector of another, if we would carry with us always proper precaution for our own safety, accidents would be of much less frequent occurrence.

The great provocative to them is our common heedlessness and assumption of special rights that have no foundation in fellowship or in law.

We call it most unkind in Congressman Kearns to send us on a beautiful calendar picture of the capitol at Washington just at the time when we had decided that we did not want to succeed him. It sort of looks like sending flowers to the funeral of our "career."

Total exports in November of bread stuffs, cotton seed oil, cattle, hogs and sheep, meat and dairy products, cotton and mineral oils amounted to $94,667,866. In November, 1914, they amounted to $97,190,040. Last November we exported 45,373,535 pounds of bacon. In November a year ago we exported 18,602,389 pounds.

We rather get the impression from perusal of Editor Sibley's columns these January days that he puts in part of his time in reading roasts on President Wilson in the New York Tribune and the balance of it in indignation over what he has read.

We see no reason why the towpath should enter into competition with that temporary bridge of blessed memory in making itself impassable.

NEW-YORK-DAY-BY-DAY.

O. O. MCINTYRE.

New York, Jan. 15.—When George Randolph Chester migrated from a little town in Indiana to write pieces for the Cincinnati Enquirer, he was given as his first assignment the covering of the hotels to write the gossip of the lobbies.

Armed with seven pencils and a gift-edged leather note book, the journalist's career, Chester began the rounds of the hotels. At the old Furey Hotel a banquet was in progress and Chester was instructed by the clerk to go up to the banquet hall. He did.

About midnight he called up his office and reported that all was quiet in the hotels. "How about that banquet at the Emery?" he was asked.

"Oh, shucks, there wasn't any new to it at all. They didn't even get around to the speech-making. The toastmaster in lighting a cigar set his celluloid collar on fire and everybody went home."

"All right, come on in," said the tired voice of the city editor. "Your next assignment is to be quite an important one. I'm going to send you home to have you find out how they come to turn you loose."

A long-haired young man approached the postal window, in the Times Square station and diffidently showed a roll of paper through to the stamp clerk.

"What is it?" demanded the latter, as he weighed the package. "Second or third-class material?"

"Don't be so free with your criticism," flared up the youth unexpectedly. "That's the manuscript of my new play."

The Grouch

I heard a grouch the other day
Reluctant upon the pouring rain,
And grunt, in tummy-achy way,
That downpours ought to him a pain.

Yet faith, I've never known a shower
That wasn't followed by the sun;
'Tis true, each had its certain hour,
But joy ensued when it was done.

The grouch says, "Ain't the winter cold!
My nose an' toes are almost friz'!"
But springtime brings, if truth were told,
No happiness more keen than his;

I never know a winter yet
But what was followed by a spring
Yet there are those who fume and fret
About the blizzards winters bring.

The rose droops on its flaccid stem,
Then drops to earth and sully dies,
But next year brings a brighter gem
Upon a fresher stem to rise;

I never knew a blossom fair
To wither, but within the year
A better blossom budded where
It exhaled sweet and clear.

The grouch views all things passing by;
He never thinks of those to come;
Too prone by far is he to sigh
That everything is growing gloom;

When he awakes, as sure he will,
And finds the better things about,
He'll stop his pessimism shrill
And put his gloomy thoughts to rout.

Boozers Ride On Freights

The Huntington Herald-Dispatch Saturday morning said:

"With labeled liquors practically exiled from Chesapeake & Ohio passenger trains, railroad detectives are now finding the freight trains populated with persons carrying labeled liquor, according to reports yesterday to the police department."

"Much difficulty is being caused the trainmen because of the habit of these persons carrying liquor 'cutting of the air' and stopping a train so that they can alight."

"While the law does not bar labeled liquor from freight trains, persons riding the trains are liable as trespassers. Detectives of the railroad it is stated are thoroughly on the alert to the new situation and, although having some difficulties, are coping with them."

Forecaster Deveraux wired to Capt. H. C. Donally, the local river observer, Saturday morning as follows: "Unsettled weather over upper Ohio valley tonight and Sunday with probably local rain or snow. River will be about stationary tonight and probably begin falling Sunday unless moderately heavy rains should occur." The stage here at 10 o'clock Saturday morning was 49.3 ft. and stationary. There was a rise of only two tenths of a foot from 7 o'clock Friday evening when the marks showed 49.1 ft. until Saturday morning at 7 o'clock. At the 7 o'clock reading Saturday there was no way of ascertaining just what the river was doing but it is thought to have come to a stand some time during the night, in fact it was stationary for several hours Friday evening and then came up again a couple of tenths.

The water is now over the intersection of Mill and Chillicothe streets and hugging the surface of upper Mill street. Seepage through the Mill street garbage dump has formed a number of small ponds in the vicinity of Front and Waller streets which have since frozen and youngsters are having great sport skating.

OFFICER HENDERSON PUT BACK ON FORCE AND THEN HE IS AGAIN SUSPENDED

The city police officials enacted an "On Again, Off Again, Finnegans" stunt in the case of Anderson Henderson, suspended patrolman, before the newly appointed Civil Service Commission Friday evening. The order of removal was withdrawn by agreement of counsel and with the consent of the commissioners and Henderson was formally reinstated to his position by Police Chief Henry Clark, who was present, only to be indefinitely removed a few moments later by E. K. S. Clinkensbeard, director of public safety, on new charges.

The latest charges against the patrolman are as follows:
 "1. Violation of the State Civil Service laws in that on or about October 20th, the said Anderson Henderson was guilty of soliciting votes for certain candidates to be voted upon at the election of November 2nd.
 "2. Violation of the State Civil Service laws in that on or about October 15th the said Anderson Henderson was guilty of discourteous treatment of the public, using improper language to various women of the North End."

The charges were read by Clerk T. M. Gynn and a copy of them served upon Mr. Henderson. The commission was disposed to grant him reasonable time in which to prepare for a hearing, but he declared himself ready and willing that it proceed at once. It was finally decided to hold the hearing at 7:30 Tuesday evening, January 18th.

City Solicitor Anselm Skelton held that in view of Henderson's reinstatement he would be entitled to full pay for every day of his period of the original suspension, including Friday.

Henderson was suspended on the evening of January 6th, on charges prepared by Mayor H. H. Kaps and signed by Chief Henry Clark.

Under the latest civil service laws the director of public safety is the proper official to suspend an officer, and this discovery is thought to have been one of the reasons for the withdrawal of the order of removal. Henderson was originally charged with drinking while on duty and of pernicious activity in politics.

The new commission had no sooner organized and disposed of other preliminaries when Solicitor Skelton proposed that the order of removal in Henderson's case be withdrawn. Former Solicitor H. Stanley McCall, counsel for Mr. Henderson, suggested that in order to make the records more complete, that a motion would be in order to the effect that the commission consent to the withdrawal. Melvin Funk, the Democratic member of the commission, moved that such consent be given, but John Eckhart, Republican, resisted Mr. Funk's urgent and good-natured pleas for a second to receive an opinion from Solicitor Skelton, who had stepped into the front office. Once Mr. Skelton had assured him that such consent would have no bearing on or interfere with any future proceedings in the case, Mr. Eckhart cheerfully seconded the motion and it carried unanimously.

The commission was about to adjourn when Chief Clark stepped forward, saying: "I have the honor of reinstating Mr. Henderson as patrolman." The commissioners contented that it was a matter with which it had nothing to do, as there was nothing more before them. Solicitor Skelton began addressing the commissioners on the subject of new rules and when he had finished Clerk Gynn presented the new charges against the patrolman.

The commission organized before taking up the Henderson case by electing George W. Sheppard as president and Mr. Gynn as clerk. Announcement was made that it would conduct examinations of applicants for city positions on January 26th and 27th.

Solicitor Skelton suggested that the department heads prepare lists of questions and answers and furnish them to the applicants, and after all of them have been returned on examination night the commission should therefrom certain questions on the newly given answers, of which will be based the rating of the respective applicants. He said this was the custom followed in many cities.

Solicitor Skelton recommended and his son will be charged with the commission adopt rules that would apply to local conditions. He said the rules of the federal and the prosecution will be under commission rules, were in definite and not applicable to local conditions. He said he was going merchants have complained of local to take it upon himself to communicate with Springfield and secure a copy of its rules and submit them to the commission to select from such as will meet with their views and ideas. He said the city council can not afford to make any large appropriation for the commission to carry on its work and that it must therefore do the best it can under the circumstances. It was suggested that the law provides that the commissioners shall receive compensation for their services, but the former commissioners had never availed themselves of the opportunity. This seemed to strike a responsive chord with Mr. Funk and he joyfully declared in favor of the commission looking up the salary end of the proposition.

COUNTERFEITERS CAUGHT ON A LOCAL SHANTYBOAT

The arrest in Ironton Thursday of John Savage, of this county, led to the discovery of a counterfeiting establishment on the houseboat, "Square Deal," anchored on the shore of the Ohio river, just east of the Brooke Manufacturing Company's plant in New Boston, Friday afternoon, by Portsmouth and Ironton officials.

Following the discovery and confiscation of the equipment on the boat, Newton Jones, 53, who lives on the boat, confessed to the officers that he had been manufacturing bogus gold coins for several weeks, and that John Savage, who also resides on the boat, and his son, Emory Savage, of 2343 Eighth street, this city, had been passing it. The elder Savage had already confessed to passing counterfeit money at Ironton Thursday evening.

John Savage was arrested in Ironton Thursday afternoon on complaint of a grocer named Lynt, who claimed that he tendered a spurious $5 gold coin to him in payment for some eggs. The grocer discovered that the coin was counterfeit after he had given good money in return as change, and he started out after the alleged swindler.

He located him and then notified the police, who placed Savage under arrest. Later it was learned that he had passed spurious coins on other Ironton merchants and that he had exhibited a large number of gold coins in his possession. The latter fact is what caused the Ironton authorities to suspect the man of being in league with a gang of counterfeiters.

Savage was lodged in the Ironton jail and repeated "sweating" by Chief of Police Mayne finally brought the admission from him that he had been passing counterfeit coins, which were made in a houseboat near Portsmouth.

Chief Mayne got into communication Friday afternoon with Sheriff Smith and made an appointment with the local official to meet him and Safety Director Abele, also of Ironton, at New Boston, Friday afternoon at three o'clock.

Sheriff Smith and his son, Earl, were there at the appointed time, and met the Ironton officials. Together they went to the boat decked by John Savage and there found Newton Jones.

Jones at first made a strenuous denial of all knowledge of the coin, but when a thorough search revealed several moulds, several bottles of acid and liquid, and other counterfeiting paraphernalia under the floor in the hull of the boat, he made a clean breast of his guilt.

He told the officers that his part of the work consisted of manufacturing the coins, while John and Emory Savage looked after the circulating of them.

Chief Mayne and Safety Director Abele returned to Ironton by automobile with Jones, who was lodged in the Ironton jail.

Friday evening Chief Mayne returned to Portsmouth and in company with Sheriff Smith, arrested Emory Savage at his home on Eighth street. He is also lodged in jail.

Charges of counterfeiting will be lodged against Jones, while Savage and his son will be charged with passing counterfeit money. The federal authorities have been notified and the prosecution will be under commission rules, were in definite and not applicable to local conditions. He said he was going merchants have complained of local to take it upon himself to communi-

The funeral services were held Saturday and interment was made in the Gillilan private cemetery near Tygart.

BOYS' QUARREL ENDS IN STABBING; VICTIM IS IN BAD CONDITION

A boys' quarrel lead to a cuttingaffray that came dangerously near resulting fatally for one of the principals, Ralph Smith, aged 13 years, a son of Police Officer Callahan Smith, Friday evening about 5 o'clock.

The Smith boy was stabbed just over the heart with a pocket knife in the hands of Garland Hunt, 12 year old son of G. D.

Hunt, a meat dealer of No. 1541 Gallia street, and also received a cut on the right leg above the knee. The cutting took place in front of the Morning Star office on Second street.

Reports Of Death

Reports spread over town that young Smith had died of his wounds and created considerable excitement. They were perhaps prompted by the fact that the boy fell into a faint just after he was brought home and was with difficulty revived. He spent a restless night, suffering frequent vomiting spells, but appeared much brighter and resting easier Saturday morning. The wound over the heart was not as deep as first supposed, and Dr. W. E. Gault after examining the injured lad Saturday morning, considered his chances for recovery very bright.

The stabbing was the sequel to an exchange of words the boys had had earlier in the evening or about four o'clock, near the Smith home in the Knittel Flats on Second street. Ralph, according to his story, went out into the alley to empty some garbage and there had quarreled with the Hunt boy. The Hunt boy, he said, took out his knife. There were four or five other boys with him and the larger ones ran him (Smith) into the house. Ralph said he filled his pockets with cakes and about an hour later strolled leisurely down Second street towards the Star office, where he has been in a habit of loafing. Seeing Hunt out in front he told him that he had better "beat it." They got into an argument, Hunt, he said, whipped out his knife and he then did likewise, but pocketed it again, saying he would not fight with a knife and offering to fight fair with fists. Hunt, though, he said, came at him with open knife and began slashing at him. When he saw he had drawn blood he ran into the Star office. Although out, Smith picked up a rock and threw it at the knife user, according to reports.

Knife User Locked Up

Sheriff Pete Smith and Officer

John Nance chanced along just about the time of the cutting and took charge of both boys, placing them in the former's machine. Blood spots all over the sidewalk and street attested to the fierceness of the encounter. The Smith boy was left with his parents, and Dr. Gault, Daehler and Carl and Walter Braunlin responded to hurry calls. The Hunt boy was taken to the county jail and locked up. Judge T. C. Beatty, of the juvenile court, as soon as advised of the unfortunate affair, began a personal investigation. He said that prompted him to believe that one boy was about as much to blame as the other, and that the Smith boy had a knife on also. Besides he had had him before him several times of late, he said.

The Hunt boy is an only child of Mr. and Mrs. Hunt, and as his mother was reported sick, and pleading that he be permitted to come home, the judge ordered his release from custody at ten o'clock with orders to appear before him Saturday morning at 9 o'clock.

Says He Disarmed Boy

J. E. Williams, an engineer employed at the Portsmouth Engine Company's plant, says that he disarmed young Hunt, taking the knife from him and "teasing him over to some one in the Star office. Officer Smith said John Collins, a reporter on the Star, told him that the Hunt boy tried to cut him while he was arresting the knife from him.

Smith also declared that it was not the Hunt boy's first offense of the kind, claiming that he cut a young son of Capt. Jos. Mohr, a former city fireman, a few years ago. This is denied by Mr. Hunt he is insisting that Friday night's affair was the first trouble his son had ever had. He attends the Union street school, while the Smith boy is a pupil of the Lower fourth street school.

ANCIENT MEALTIMES.

When They Rose at 5, Dined at 9 and Supped at 11.

The change in mealtime is evidenced by the old rhyme:

To rise at five and dine at nine,
 To sup at five and bed at nine,
 Will make a man live to ninety-nine.
 But one suspected that the change is in the names of the meals rather than in the hours. Our ancestors would have termed our luncheon dinner and our dinner supper. It is a curious fact that in some of the Oxford colleges, where the founders made allowances for the meals of the students, a much larger sum is allotted for supper than for dinner, implying that the former was the more substantial meal. Taken at 5 or 6 o'clock, it was really "early dinner."

Some particulars of the mealtime of our ancestors may be found in William Harrison's "Description of England," published in 1577.

"With us the nobility, gentry and students do ordinarily go to dinner at 11 before noon and to supper at 5 or between 5 and 6 at afternoon. The merchants dine and sup seldom before 12 at noon and 4 at night, especially in London. The husbandmen dine also at high noon, as they call it, and sup at 7 or 8, but out of the term in our universities the scholars dine at 10. As for the poorest sort, they generally dine and sup when they may, so that to talk of their order of repast it were but a needless matter."—London Chronicle.
